Saigon Gives Cease-Fire Priority

PARIS (AP) - A top South Vietnamese spokesman said today an early cease-fire is a major priority in his government's peace plan, being prepared for presentation at the expanded talks here.

Nguyen Van An, the deputy chief of Saigon's observer mission in Paris, said South Vietnam also will demand "strong and effective international guarantees" in any final settlement.

The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front have said a cease-fire is unlikely to be discussed until later in the negotiating process. They have said such discussion must be preceded by the withdrawal of American and other foreign troops from South Vietnam.

Van An spoke in an interview as Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, chief of the U. S. delegation, prepared to head home Sunday for a brief Washington visit.

Vietnam consultations were not listed as the main reason for his return, but Harriman was expected to confer with Pentagon officials on the fourthcoming conference in which Saigon will participate.

The expanded parley now is expected to get going in the second week in December. The Saigon delegation, whose absence held up the meeting for a month, is due in Paris next week.

Hanoi's insistence that it will only talk to the United States and the refusal of South Vietnam and the NLF to recognize each others will make four-way conversation difficult when the expanded talks begin.

Van An indicated the Saigon delegation will present its peace plan to the conference after the parley gets past initial procedural debate and concentrates on issues of substance.

U.S. diplomats have tended to doubt the realism of pressing for a cease-fire as the first negotiating item to end the guerrilla-type war.

Instead, they have been considering ways to bargain for de-escalation as a first step toward eventually ending all hostilities.

On post-war peace guarantees, the United States has favored a system going further than that provided by the 1954 Geneva agreements. These created a three-nation International Control Commission to supervise the Indo-China agreements, but the allies contend it has been largely ineffective.

Van An said South Vietnamese leaders constantly have drawn attention to what they consider "bad faith" by the Communists concerning the 1954 accords and also the 1962 agreement for neutralizing neighboring Laos.

"President Nguyen Van Thieu and other leaders of our government therefore have made it clear many times we require strong and effective assurances by the signatory states of a Vietnam peace settlement that the settlement will be respected," he said.

U.S. diplomats prefer to consider the conference makeup two-sided—"our-side-your-side"—with American and Saigon negotiators on one side and Hanoi and the NLF on the other.

Saigon also considers the talks two-sided. South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu said Wednesday his delegation will address all its remarks to Hanoi, apparently ignoring the NLF. It considers the latter an outlaw tool of Hanoi.

North Vietnam and the NLF claim the talks will be "four-sided", with Hanoi and the Viet Cong each having separate negotiating status.

But at the same time, both announced Thursday they would not recognize the Saigon delegation and would address all their remarks to the United States only—thus envisioning a threesided affair.

The Communists claim the Saigon regime is a "U.S. puppet" and does not represent the people of South Vietnam.

The U.S. delegation headed by Ambassador Averell Harriman has not said it will not talk to anybody, so it might become a "relay" for comments traded by the other groups.

A perplexed newsman asked a U.S. spokesman whether he would object to the use of "four-party" to describe the parley.

"I certainly would," said the spokesman, "but I would defend with my life your right to write it."

In Saigon, a foreign ministry spokesman would not comment on Hanoi's announcement that it would talk only to the United States. He said he knew of no change in plans to send a delegation to Paris, expected to arrive within the next few days.

At Bien Hoa, South Vietnamese Premier Tran Van Huong warned, "Peace cannot be achieved overnight. We have the experience in Korea." But he added, "If we have good will and are determined in our efforts for a just and lasting peace, it will come."

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky will be in overall charge of the Saigon negotiators, but he will not participate in the talks. He is expected to travel frequently between Saigon and Paris as a liaison man.

U.S. diplomats were hopeful that when the Paris conference gets going ways will be found to scale down the fighting. They doubted that preconference propaganda blasts signaled any Communist intent to collapse the meeting.

The South Vietnamese were busy making arrangements to match those of the other delegations, already well settled in Paris. They have leased 12 rooms on the first floor of a mansion and are acquiring a diplomatic communications circuit to Saigon.

An advance man for Ky, Nguyen Thien Nhon, headed back to Saigon after a five-day stay. Three French security men guarded Nhon here, a small sample of the safeguards planned when the full Saigon delegation arrives.

Ambassador Pham Dang Lam, who headed the South Vietnamese observer mission here, and Bui Diem, the South Vietnamese ambassador to Washington were reported preparing to fly here shortly.

Mine Again Explodes

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Another "major explosion" ripped through No. 9 today, spewing smoke and flame from the mine's Llewellyn portal near the area where 78 men have been trapped nine days.

The early-morning blast, the 16th since the initial explosion Nov. 20, sent flames and a column of white smoke spiraling above the entrance.

Officials directing efforts to rescue the entombed miners promised a "very, very comprehensive evaluation" of the situation within the sprawling mine today.

Drillings made by boring through to the deep caverns below produced air samples showing high concentrations of deadly carbon monoxide and dangerous methane gas.

Peter P. Ferretti, a vice president of Consolidation Coal Co., said the latest testings Thursday night were taken from an area where the men had been trained to go in case of disaster.

He described the testing area as a "very critical place." The carbon monoxide level was 50 times human capability while the methane concentraton was 26.4 per cent. He said there is danger of explosion when methane reaches a level of between 5 and 15 per cent.

Ferretti said "we will make some decision" after the evaluation today.

Ferretti, asked Thursday night if the drill sites showed the same deadly air samples would mean sealing the mine, replied: "I can't comment on that. This, of course, is a possibility. All the information at this time doesn't look good. It doesn't look encouraging."

The mine normally draws air from one opening, through the tunnels and out another opening. When methane builds up, the officials said, the flow is reversed and air is drawn in from both ends. This feeds the fire which in turn ignites the methane and produces an explosion.

The 78 men were trapped Nov. 20 when a blast tore through the mine, owned by the Mountaineer Coal Co., a subsidiary of Consolidation. Twentyone other miners escaped.

Families and friends of the trapped men continued their waiting at a little church near the mine.

In Thanksgiving Day services, Dr. Melvin Risinger, a district superintendent for the United Methodist Church asked those attending services to "be thankful that God supports us in our time of grief."

As he spoke, two women carrying pies burst into the room, apparently unaware that services were in progress.

Dr. Risinger invited the women in and then said: "The other day I heard someone say, 'Why on earth is God doing this?'

A LIGHT PLANE crashed at 12:15 p.m. Thursday 25 feet west of the Canvas Products Company plant. It was piloted by Thomas Meeks of Cleveland, Miss. The crash came shortly after takeoff as the plane was hurled to the ground by a wind gust. The airport is east of Canvas Products plant in the background.

Wind Tosses Plane Back To Earth Pilot Walks From Wreckage

A farm pilot, who had been working in Illinois, stopped at the Municipal airport yesterday to refuel enroute to a Thanksgiving dinner at his home in Cleveland, Miss., and narrowly escaped death. His plane crashed shortly after takeoff.

Thomas Meeks, 23, suffered a broken left arm and face cuts at 12:15 p.m. Thursday when the Aeronca two-place light airplane he was piloting was buffetted by a gust of wind.

The plane had left off the ground and traveled about 300 yards from the takeoff when strong winds engulfed the craft and Meeks lost control.

The plane was between 50 and 75 feet above the ground when it was carried crashing back to earth. It crashed between the airport T-hangar and the Canvas Products Co. plant.

Wind gusts of up to 60 miles per hour were reported in Sikeston Thursday.

The wreckage came to rest about 25 feet west of the manufacturing plant.

Meeks was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital. He was treated and released and then taken to a hospital in Memphis for surgery on the arm.

Meeks walked away from the wreckage. The 700-plane was demolished.

Charleston Not Seeking Chief Now

CHARLESTON - Tomorrow is the effective date of Police Chief Dolph Webb's resignation and Charleston City Manager James Butts said today that until a review is made of the department, the city will not actively seek a replacement.

Butts related that a patrolman presently on the force may be qualified for the position. He did not name the officer. He specified that in order to qualify for the opening, he would like any applicant to have five to 10 years experience in police work along with a high school education or the equivalent. The job pays between $450 and $500 per month, depending upon qualifications and experience.

"I am not actively seeking applications for a new chief, but should someone apply, their applications would be accepted for review. I've got other matters more pressing at this time," Butts said.

Webb, formerly a patrolman on the Sikeston Police Department, was chief of police at Charleston for 11 months.

Webb claims his resignation was prompted by "compromises" made last week by Butts on matters of police policy with Mississippi County Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons. He also has complained of lack of backing from the city council, city manager and city attorney.

Butts had denied that any compromises were made by him with the sheriff.

G.O.P. Gains in Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans came out of the 1968 election with 31 governors, their highest total in 45 years, including the five largest and eight of the 10 biggest states.

Even when Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew resigns as governor of Maryland, to be replaced in all likelihood by a Democrat selected by the overwhelmingly Democratic legislature, the GOP will control 30 governorships for the first time since the 1952-54 period. In 1923, they held 34.

States with Republican governors represent 69 per cent of the population of the 50 states, according to the Republican Governors Association.

The big GOP prize this year was Illinois, where Richard B. Ogilvie unseated Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, who had moved up to the governorship when Otto Kerner became a federal appeals judge in May.

But Republicans failed in a bid to take over Texas, where Dmocratic Lt. Gov. Preston Smith defeated Paul Eggers.

Besides Texas, only New Jersey, which elects a governor in 1969, is in Democratic hands. In that state, Republicans plan a vigorous bid as Gov. Richard J. Hughes is forbidden by the state contitution from seeking a third successive four-year term.

Republicans had held a 26-24 lead over the Democrats going into the 1968 election. GOP winners this year in previously Democratic states included Russell W. Peterson, Delaware; Edgar D. Whitcomb, Indiana; Robert D. Ray, Iowa; Deane C. Davis, Vermont; Walter R. Peterson, New Hampshire and Arch A. Moore Jr., West Virginia. Only in Delaware, where Peterson defeated Gov. Charles L. Terry, was a Democratic incumbent running.

Democrats picked up two governorships when Frank Licht unseated Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island and Forrest H. Anderson defeated Gov. Tim Babcock of Montana.

Republicans retained Arizona, Jack Williams; Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller; New Mexico, David Cargo; South Dakota, Frank Farrar; Washington, Daniel Evans; and Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles.

Democrats retained Kansas, Robert Docking; Missouri, Warren E. Hearnes; North Dakota, William L. Guy; and Utah, Calvin L. Rampton.

Major Republican-held governorships to be contested in 1970 include New York, Nelson A. Rockefeller; California, Ronald Reagan; Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer; Ohio, James A. Rhodes; Michigan, George Romney; Massachusetts, John A. Volpe; and Florida, Claude Kirk Jr.

Thanksgiving Message Urges Reaching Out to Unfortunate

"Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord."

The Rev. Ronald G. Austin, pastor of the Illinois Avenue General Baptist Church, turned to the Book of Psalms in his Union Thanksgiving Service address at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the North Acres General Baptist Church. About 350 person attended.

Austin related that to give thanks is a natural act of those persons who recognize the supremacy of God.

"The giving of thanks requires an object," the Rev. Austin related, "I, personally, am convinced that God is the giver of every good and perfect gift. Therefore, I believe that all thanks and expressions of gratitude should be directed to God."

He then recalled the first Thanksgiving made by the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock.

"Their thanks to God originated in their hearts. It was the graciousness of God that inspired them to have a day of celebration and Thanksgiving," he said.

The Rev. Austin related some of the trials the Pilgrims faced their first year and retold how they again gave thanks after their first full year in the new country.

"Oh! That we would give heart felt thanks insomuch as God has done unto us," he said.

"The goodness of God and the proof of His mercies are all around us. We live in the land of plenty. And in every true Christian-American's heart there is a loyalty to his country, and a deep gratitude to God, his Sustainer," he said.

America is still the best place under the sun, even with its political, economic, social and religious shortcomings, he related.

Genuine thanksgiving will cause us to reach with compassion to those less fortunate than we, he urged.

"These resources, our nation, our privileges, and spiritual heritage are ours because we heeded the Word of God, and obeyed His will. Should we perhaps also take this as a warning? The Bible says, 'The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away: Blessed be the name of the Lord.'"

Charleston Not Seeking Chief Now

CHARLESTON - Tomorrow is the effective date of Police Chief Dolph Webb's resignation and Charleston City Manager James Butts said today that until a review is made of the department, the city will not actively seek a replacement.

Butts related that a patrolman presently on the force may be qualified for the position. He did not name the officer. He specified that in order to qualify for the opening, he would like any applicant to have five to 10 years experience in police work along with a high school education or the equivalent. The job pays between $450 and $500 per month, depending upon qualifications and experience.

"I am not actively seeking applications for a new chief, but should someone apply, their applications would be accepted for review. I've got other matters more pressing at this time," Butts said.

Webb, formerly a patrolman on the Sikeston Police Department, was chief of police at Charleston for 11 months.

Webb claims his resignation was prompted by "compromises" made last week by Butts on matters of police policy with Mississippi County Sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons. He also has complained of lack of backing from the city council, city manager and city attorney.

Butts had denied that any compromises were made by him with the sheriff.

G.O.P. Gains in Elections

WASHINGTON (AP) - Republicans came out of the 1968 election with 31 governors, their highest total in 45 years, including the five largest and eight of the 10 biggest states.

Even when Vice President-elect Spiro T. Agnew resigns as governor of Maryland, to be replaced in all likelihood by a Democrat selected by the overwhelmingly Democratic legislature, the GOP will control 30 governorships for the first time since the 1952-54 period. In 1923, they held 34.

States with Republican governors represent 69 per cent of the population of the 50 states, according to the Republican Governors Association.

The big GOP prize this year was Illinois, where Richard B. Ogilvie unseated Gov. Samuel H. Shapiro, who had moved up to the governorship when Otto Kerner became a federal appeals judge in May.

But Republicans failed in a bid to take over Texas, where Dmocratic Lt. Gov. Preston Smith defeated Paul Eggers.

Besides Texas, only New Jersey, which elects a governor in 1969, is in Democratic hands. In that state, Republicans plan a vigorous bid as Gov. Richard J. Hughes is forbidden by the state contitution from seeking a third successive four-year term.

Republicans had held a 26-24 lead over the Democrats going into the 1968 election. GOP winners this year in previously Democratic states included Russell W. Peterson, Delaware; Edgar D. Whitcomb, Indiana; Robert D. Ray, Iowa; Deane C. Davis, Vermont; Walter R. Peterson, New Hampshire and Arch A. Moore Jr., West Virginia. Only in Delaware, where Peterson defeated Gov. Charles L. Terry, was a Democratic incumbent running.

Democrats picked up two governorships when Frank Licht unseated Gov. John H. Chafee of Rhode Island and Forrest H. Anderson defeated Gov. Tim Babcock of Montana.

Republicans retained Arizona, Jack Williams; Arkansas, Winthrop Rockefeller; New Mexico, David Cargo; South Dakota, Frank Farrar; Washington, Daniel Evans; and Wisconsin, Warren P. Knowles.

Democrats retained Kansas, Robert Docking; Missouri, Warren E. Hearnes; North Dakota, William L. Guy; and Utah, Calvin L. Rampton.

Major Republican-held governorships to be contested in 1970 include New York, Nelson A. Rockefeller; California, Ronald Reagan; Pennsylvania, Raymond P. Shafer; Ohio, James A. Rhodes; Michigan, George Romney; Massachusetts, John A. Volpe; and Florida, Claude Kirk Jr.

The Starnes car struck a bridge, spun around and was struck in the side by a 1967 Pontiac, driven by Virgil Ray Edwards, 35, Donaldson, Tenn., the state patrol reported.

Starnes received a fractured skull, fractured arm and internal injuries. Another passenger, Mary Elizabeth Starnes, his wife, received a broken right arm and internal injuries.

Three passengers in the Edwards car were treated for minor injuries - Marilyn Edwards, 33, Timothy 10, and Philip Edwards, three, all of Broseley.

The injured were treated at the Doctors hospital in Poplar Bluff.

The body of Mrs. Schall was taken to Whites Funeral Home in Fisk.

Four children were injured in a two-car accident Wednesday at 6:55 p.m. at the junction of highways 153 and 62 in Risco.

A 1966 Dodge station wagon, driven by James Giffrey, 39, Malden, failed to yield the right-of-way the patrol said and pulled in front of a 1954 Oldsmobile, driven by Paul Huffman, Risco.

The driver of the Oldsmobile was not injured, but brothers and sister of the driver received cuts, bruises and scratches. They were Patsy 12, Dennis, 10, Gamolu 14 and Ruby Huffman, 8, treated and released from the Dunklin County Memorial hospital, in Kennett.

Giffrey was arrested on a charge of failure to yield the right-of-way, and leaving the scene of an accident. Huffman was given a summons for not having an operators license.

Two drivers and a passenger, were taken to St. Francis hospital, Cape Girardeau, for injuries received in an accident Wednesday at 2:35 p.m. on highway 61 at Scott City.

A 1968 Chevrolet, driven by Herman Lee Boyer, 65, Illmo, pulled into the path of a 1964 C hevrolet, driven by Roy Donald Carroll, 28, Jackson, the patrol said.

Boyer received a fractured shoulder and cuts on his face.

Carroll received injuries to his head and chest, and a passenger, McKinley House, 72, Illmo, had injuries in his chest, bruises and scratches.

Boyer received a summons for careless and reckless driving and failure to yield the right of way.

In an accident Wednesday at 9:15 a.m. on highway 61, three miles south of Hayti, 1965 Ford, driven by Lawrence Slayton, 26, New Madrid, was involved in two injuries.

Slayton lost control speeding, the patrol charged, ran off the highway and overturned. The driver was thrown out of the car but the vehicle fell on top of him.

Slayton had injuries in his back and cuts.

A passenger, Ronnie Kirk, 26, New Madrid, had cuts and bruises.

Both were taken to Pemiscot Memorial hospital in Hayti.

Slayton was given a summons by the patrol for careless and imprudent driving.

East Prairie Man Injured

EAST PRAIRIE - L. Vernon Pritchett, 35, East Prairie, made a repeat performance Wednesday afternoon when he received back and whiplash neck injuries while traveling in his car on Route 3 toward Cario, Ill.

Authorities report Pritchett's car, which was stopped for a northbound school bus that was dispersing students, was hit from behind about 25 miles north of Cario by an Illinois man driving a 1961 Chevrolet. The crash occurred about 4 p.m.

Pritchett is being treated at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

His wife, who is a news correspondent for The Daily Standard, said Pritchett, an employe of the Miko Grain Company at Cairo, received similar injuries in the latter part of August when his car was struck from behind. Treatment for injuries received in that accident were suspended just three weeks ago.

Thanksgiving Message Urges Reaching Out to Unfortunate

"Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord."

The Rev. Ronald G. Austin, pastor of the Illinois Avenue General Baptist Church, turned to the Book of Psalms in his Union Thanksgiving Service address at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the North Acres General Baptist Church. About 350 person attended.

Austin related that to give thanks is a natural act of those persons who recognize the supremacy of God.

"The giving of thanks requires an object," the Rev. Austin related, "I, personally, am convinced that God is the giver of every good and perfect gift. Therefore, I believe that all thanks and expressions of gratitude should be directed to God."

He then recalled the first Thanksgiving made by the Pilgrims at Plymouth Rock.

"Their thanks to God originated in their hearts. It was the graciousness of God that inspired them to have a day of celebration and Thanksgiving," he said.

The Rev. Austin related some of the trials the Pilgrims faced their first year and retold how they again gave thanks after their first full year in the new country.

"Oh! That we would give heart felt thanks insomuch as God has done unto us," he said.

"The goodness of God and the proof of His mercies are all around us. We live in the land of plenty. And in every true Christian-American's heart there is a loyalty to his country, and a deep gratitude to God, his Sustainer," he said.

America is still the best place under the sun, even with its political, economic, social and religious shortcomings, he related.

Genuine thanksgiving will cause us to reach with compassion to those less fortunate than we, he urged.

"These resources, our nation, our privileges, and spiritual heritage are ours because we heeded the Word of God, and obeyed His will. Should we perhaps also take this as a warning? The Bible says, 'The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away: Blessed be the name of the Lord.'"

Christmas Season Opens

The Christmas season emerged today, the day after Thanksgiving, with just 21 shopping days remaining.

Linemen for the Board of Municipal Utilities began decorating light poles downtown.

The aluminum light poles are being wrapped in teinseled grennery downtown and from Marks & Stearnes Supermarket on North Main to the Sikeston IGA store on South Main. The business area from Proffers Bi-Rite east toward the shoe factory intersection will be decoarted.

Freight Hits Auto, Lifts Driver into Coal Car

EAST PRAIRIE--Larry Dean Kelley, 22, East Prairie, miraculously escaped serious injury early Thanksgiving Day when his car crashed into a Missouri-Pacific freight train at a crossing near Chester, Ill.

Illinois authorities reported Kelley's car, a 1956 Pontiac, was dragged two and one-half miles by the train.

Kelley's mother, Mrs. Moy Kelley, said he was thrown from his automobile into a train car containing coal.

Injuries included a cut on the forehead and cuts and bruises on his neck, back and legs. He was treated and released at a Chester hospital and taken to his parents home in East Prairie.

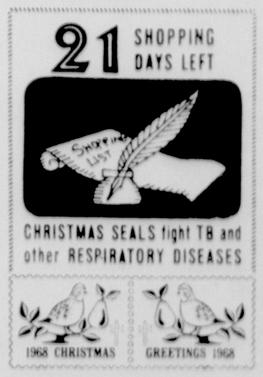

Kelley was enroute to East Prairie from St. Louis on highway 3 when the accident occurred at 1:15 a.m. Foul weather was blamed for the crash.

When the train was stopped Illinois authorities along with workers on the train searched more than two hours before finding Kelley, who was knocked unconscious by the impact.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

Vice President Hubert has decided not to take any position in the administration of President-Elect Richard Nixon.

He is going to devote his time, according to his announcement, to rebuilding the Democratic party.

The idea is a commendable one.

The Humphrey absence won't keep other Democrats from joining Republicans in positions of trust in the Nixon administration.

Nixon will not be handicapped in his ambition to unite the American people because of the absence of Humphrey.

He will keep his free hand and so will his Democratic opponent for the presidency.

Too much unity could be bad for the country anyway.

Both U. S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy, and former Minnesota Democrat, and former Gov. George Wallace, Alabama Democrat, made important contributions to the presidential campaign by opposing the policies of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The American people were in a better position to act intelligently because of their presence in the campaign.

The two-party system needs to be maintained. The American people will be the losers if it is not and if another attempt is made to form a concensus of all the diverse elements in the two major political parties.

There is a definite place for the loyal opposition, ready to join the policies they deem constructive and oppose those with which they disagree.

This is part of the American system of checks and balances.

It is valuable and should not either be eroded or discarded.

Humphrey's choice is a sound one not only for himself and the Democrats but for the country as well.

Dr. Emmett F. Hoctor, superintendent of of State Hospital No. 4 at Farmington from 1925 to 1963 is one among a dedicated group of physicians who came to be known for his many years of faithful service to his patients. The remarkable years he has given to his patients, his profession and his community have now been recorded in a recently published book, "Let Me Not Be Mad, Sweet Heaven!" by William and John Stewart.

Dr. Hoctor's devotion to his patients, his ability to overcome many of the prejudices and superstitions that impede the treatment of the mentally ill and his ability to win the confidence of the community at large–all are described from the first-hand knowledge of the authors, a former chaplain at the Farmington hospital and his son. It was not only Dr. Hoctor's support with his patients and the community that made his work so effective. Equally important was his progressive attitude toward changing concepts and methods in psychiatric medicine. He was in the forefront in the introduction of the Kettering hypertherm for the treatment of general paresis in the early 1930's, in the use of insulin coma therapy in the late 1930's, in the use of electro-convulsive therapy and pre-frontal lobotomy in the early 1940's and the use of psychotropic drugs in the 1950's.

Beyond all of this, however, the significance of Dr. Hoctor's career lies in his fulfillment of the highest aspirations of our profession. He embodied these in his selfless devotion to his work, h complete concern for the welfare of his patients and his dedication to the alleviation of suffering as the highest ideal of the profession. His career should stand as a reminder that the relationship of the physician to his patient remains the foundation for the best in medical care. It is to be hoped that this will not be sacrificed as Missouri's mental health program continues to grow.

One of the phenomenons of the 60's is the nation's preoccupation with psychedellic colors, and the introduction of new product colors. Not the least affected is the old reliable bicycle, say the Bicycle Institute of America. For 50 years, red was probably the most asked-for color, but public demand has brought bikes in gleaming fuschia, beige, electric yellow and a half-dozen other colors unheard of five years ago. Bicycle seats, too, are manufactured in matching colors. A New York City rend is for a gal to match her bike togs to her bicycle, in a number of dayglo colors.

JOLLY SPRIG OF PLASTIC

The people who would replace natural products by plastics have been going too far. We can't get used to such a thing as plastic mistletoe.

Plastic substitues for leather are useful. There's not enough leather in the world to make seat coverings for all the automobiles rolling off the assembly lines.

Plastic substitues for fur look good. And can help to diminish the slaughter of wild creatures which are threatened, by the thoughtlessness of mankind, with extenction. As far plastic flowers, each to his own taste. They don't have much odor.

Plastic toys now are plentifully on the Christmas market. Fortunately, they are made of tougher stuff than those early models which came apart at baby's first blow. Dolls have plastic hair and plastic hands; it's a wonder they don't cry plastic tears.

Even Christmas trees can be artifical, of course. Made of aluminum or plastic, they can be used over and over again, year after year, like some 1967 auto license plates. And some even manage to look like real Christmas trees.

But plastic mistletoe?? Granted that the real berries sometimes fall off when one tries to nail it strategically over the doorway. Granted that it is a woodland parasite, growing on trees and bushes. But who would feel romantic standing under a sprig of polyethylene?

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the ordeals of life is the problem of getting rid of the remains of a turkey you win in the annual office Thanksgiving raffle.

For some reason unknown to man the prizes in these affairs are never reasonable-sized birds —say 10 to 12-pounders.

No, indeedy. They all suffer from gigantism, one of the curses of a myopic civilization which tends mistakenly to equate mere bulk with true quality. They weigh from 20 pounds on up, and are built like hulking feathered apes.

A man ceases to be a hero in his wife's eyes any day he lugs home a vast rubbery turkey he has won at the office. As he opens the door, full of pride but faint with exhaustion, she takes one look at the turkey slung over his bent back and yelps:

"What do you expect me to do with that—cook it or preserve it for the Smithsonian Institution?"

"Now what are you hollering about?" he says. "aren't you glad I won us a free Thanksgiving dinner?"

Free? Getting a supposedly free turkey at Thanksgiving is like being given a sacred white elephant in Thailand. The initial cost is nothing. But the upkeep is everything.

By the time you surround the turkey with proper fixings and buy liquor and white wine for the free-loading friends you invite to share your bounty, it is necessary to take out a second mortgage on your home to foot the bill.

The next morning when you take a bleary look at the turkey it hardly seems dented. How can you get rid of it?

There are 1,012 recipes for serving leftover turkey, but what stomach can face turkey, in any of its disguises, for 1,012 consecutive days?

You can't feed it to the cat, because the cat couldn't consume it in all he nine lifetimes. You can't give it to a poor relative, because no relative is so poor that he will accept a handme-down turkey.

You can't bundle it up and send it to Britain, because the British are still angry at us for palming off on them all the mountains of powdered eggs we had left after World War II.

Of course, you could dig a hole in the back yard big enough to bury it in, but a hole that large would take three days of steady digging.

The best way, however, to get rid of a leftover turkey is to avoid having it in the first place. When they announce at the office you have won a turkey, you say:

"No, thank you. Tear up my ticket. I almost lost my happy home once by bringing home an office Thanksgiving turkey. Never again!"

PRESUMPTUOUS' IF NOT OBNOXIOUS

Herewith, the statement issued by Stanford University Student Body President Denis Hayes on the announcement that Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer, president of Rice University, had been named new president of Stanford:

"The appointment ...without benefit of student participation or even student advice, represents a gross abuse by the Stanford trusteses of the legal powers vested in them.

"No students were asked to meet Dr. Pitzer prior to his selection, nor were any of us granted access to his files. We were not even informed that he was under consideration, so that we could have conducted some research of our own."

Student Hayes also complains that no sampling of Rice University students' opinions about Pitzer were made.

"In an age where the relationship of a university president to his students is of such critical importance, this kind of investigatory negligence is inexcusable."

It must be noted that Hayes, exercising his office as spokesman for all the thousands of the university's students, knows nothing about the new president and has nothing on or against him. That does not stop him from going on at length expressing in Eng. Lit. term paper language his vague doubts about the man or castigating the Stanford trustees for their temerity and questioning their wisdom.

Times have changed, of course, and the relationship of a university president to his students is undeniably of critical importance today. But if this is an example of the so-called "campus revolution," old folks over 30 may perhaps be excused if they wonder if it is an entirely desirable thing.

Young people can, at times, be presumptuous. Even obnoxious.

SOME people can preach; others can practice.

I was having lunch with a noted advocate of the golden rule in industry. His philosophy is that workers respond to decent treatment and that the employer who treats his men as he would like to be treated rarely encounters any labor trouble. He is not an employer, but he advises other employers.

The waiter asked this man an intelligent question about his order. Did he want orange juice or a raw orange?

"Can't you read?' the man snarled. 'It says orange and that's what I want.'

When the lunch had been served the man beckoned to the waiter and asked him why he had no rolls 'Did you order rolls?' asked the waiter, reaching for the bill. "Whether I ordered them or not I want them, so go and get them,' exclaimed the man.

He hadn't ordered rolls and he knew it.

We didn't discuss labor relations that day.

NOT A TAX LOOPHOLE

Some people speak of the depletion allowance on oil production as a "tax loophole" which should be closed. But it is not a "loophole" at all. Instead, it is evidence of longtime recognition by the United States Congress that every barrel of oil extracted from the ground, which is irreplaceable, depletes the value of the mineral lease on the ground, and the proceeds of selling the oil cannot be regarded as income. Any oil producer unwise enough to treat it all as income will likely find himself in difficulty in short order.

As long ago as 1910 the U.S. Treasury held that depletion of oil well s and mines was properly deducted from the gross income of operations. It was not until 1916, however, that the word "depletion" actually occurred in a federal tax law. At that time oil and gas well operators were permitted "a resonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation based upon cost, including cost of development not otherwise deducted." This was discovery value depletion, and it was carried also in the Revenue Acts of 1921 and 1924.

In 1926 Congress adopted the percentage depletion allowance system, which has been continued since then. Cogress must have had good reason to believe in the fairness of the depletion allowance to have kept it in effect year after year.

Depletion was not granted by Congress as a special privilege. It was not a subsidy. It simply recognizes the undeniable fact that each barrel of oil sold represents disposal of a part of the capital of the well's owner. HLH

-MINE SAFETY IGNORED-

On May 17, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that enforcement of the Coal Mine Safety Act of 1952 "has become a farce. Violation after violation has been cited since that act became law, but only one penalty has ever been assessed against a mine operator.

"Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall has appeared more interested in paths through parks and preservation of woods and flowers than in the protection of coal miners' health."

The recent West Virginia disaster involving the lives of 78 men would appear to bear out the Pearson-Anderson column.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Signs point to speedy exist from USA by Stokely Carmichael, speaker McCormack indicates he'll retire in 1970; Alabama starts investigating liquor pay-offs

WASHINGTON - It now looks as if Stokely Carmichael, the black militant, is beating it out of the country before President-Elect .Nixon gets a chance to indict him.

Carmichael already has shipped all his furniture and belongings, including the carpets on the floors of his $70,000 Washington home, to the West African Nation of Guinea.

Carmichael and his wife, the glamorous South African folk singer, Miriam Makeba, personally supervised the packing. There is every indication that they ihend to follow.

During the early 1960s, Carmichael studied Marxism in Guinea, which is considered the most pro-communist country in West Africa. He picked up many of his ideas on black power from Guinea's President Sekou Toure, who presented him with a long, flowing African robe. This has always been one of Carmichael's prize possessions.

The question of whether to indict Carmichael has been debated in our highest government councils. President Johnson wanted to act against Carmichael, who has preached both violation and sedition in the Negro ghettos. Over Hanoi radio, Carmichael also urged American soldiers to turn on their officers and to desert to the enemy.

Attorney General Ramsey Clark, however, argued that foreign witnesses who would come to the United States to testify against Carmichael would be hard to find in communist countries. Recordings of Carmichael's broadcasts, of course, would be inadmissible.

He cautioned that an indictment of Carmichael might fail in court and lead to renewed public outrage over the alleged "leniency" of the federal jucicial system. All that would be accomplished, he suggested, might be to make a martyr out of Carmichael in the ghettos.

Apparently, Carmichael is less confident that the new Nixon administration will hold back an indictment and isn't staying around to find out.

His departure should take some of the steam out of the violent and vociferous black panther party which Carmichael heads. He became Prime Minister of the black panthers after they broke their alliance with the student nonviolent coordinating committee.

A confidential government intelligence report on the subject declared: "this split probably occurred because of revalry for influence in the black community, but there is some indication that SNCC leaders were worried over the extreme militance of the BPP.

"The fact that SNCC leaders consider the BPP threats to violent activity . . . should be taken seriously."

If Carmichael ducks out, as it now appears that he intends to do, he may no longer remain a hero figure to his militant disciples.

-EMBATTLED JOHN MCCORMACK-

In a maneuver to take the steam out of the drive to unseat him, speaker John McCormack has spread the word on Capitol Hill that he wants to serve only one more term and will retire from congress in 1970.

However, this hasn't diminished the determination of 41-year-old Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., to oust the venerable speaker, who will be 77 next month.

Although few others believe the old man can be removed, Adams still intends to force a showdown on McCormack in the Democratic caucus at the beginning of the next congress. If all 243 Democratic members are present, it will take a majority vote of 122 to unseat the speaker.

Before Adams began his campaign against McCormack, he telephoned the speaker and disclosed his plans.

"Naturally, I am upset to hear this, Brock," said McCormack. "I thought you were a friend of mine."

"I am your friend, and I want to continue being your friend, Mr. Speaker," replied Adams. "There's nothing personal at all in what I am going to do. Please understand that."

"Have you made up your mind definitely about this?" asked McCormack.

"Yes, sir, I have," said Adams.

"In that case, there is no reason for us to argue about it," said the speaker. "I can't stop you."

Note: Adams was still in diapers when McCormack came to congress in 1928. Most insiders agree that the speaker will be kept in power by a coalition of committee chairmen, most of them old men like himself who don't want to upset the status quo and, therefore, are opposed to reforms.

-ALABAMA PROBE STARTS-

Our expose of liquor pay-offs to George Wallace's fund raisers has already produced both Federal and State investigations.

This column charged that Wallace has been squeezing money out of the liquor industry to help finance his political campaigns. Payments of more than $138,000 were traced from a Birmingham brokerage firm to Robert Millsap, one of Wallace's chief fund raisers.

Documents in our possession show that the firm was splitting its liquor commissions with Millsap, although he played no visible role in liquor sales to Alabama's alcoholic beverage control board.

After Alabama Gov. Albert Brewer learned of our findings, he dispatched one of the state's top investigators, Ben Allen, to Bessemer, Ala., to investigate Millsap's operations. We will be happy to assist the state by furnishing documents or testimony.

Meanwhile, the internal revenue service has opened an investigation into possible tax angles. The T-men are also checking into charges that certain Wallace aides have pocketed contributions that were supposed to be spent on his campaigns. During his presidential campaign the greenbacks fluttered into Wallace headquarters like Autumn leaves. His accounting of all the campaign cash, however, was slipshod.

Nixon's New Labor Advisor Has No Enemies, Just Champions On All Sides

By Victor Riesel

New York: -- It takes more than a curved pipe to sherlock the moves and motivations, of Richard Nixon. It takes one of those Hotel Pierre pipelines, each of which has its own jittery secret service contingment.

But it is certain that the President-elect is moving the Republican Party to the left -- a soft left of its old center most certainly.

Of this there is living evidence in the "genial genius" George Shultz, the insiders' insider, the non-pipe-smoking academician who quietly has been developing policies on labor relations and manpower for the incoming administration.

The 48-year-old Professor (you can call him Dean) Shultz appears, from an intellectual and political viewpoint, to be the perfect selection for this bristling and explosive field.

Everybody likes him -- on all sides of the table. Since word seeped out that he could be Secretary of Labor, should he wish it, and that the is the policy maker for the President-elect, I tried to discover someone who dislikes him. I could not.

Praise come both from men we used to call captains of industry in less psychedelic years, and from men of labor we once wrote of as the militant mavericks in less statesman-like years.

No one who has bird-dogged this beat since its sit-down days ever would expect praise for a Nixon appointee from the unorthodox, erudite counselor, Ralph Helstein, who built the United Packinghouse Workers. But Mr. Helstein, a founder of the CIO and now an AFL—CIC vice-president, went silent for a full few minutes when I told him of the new administration top labor specialist. Then he responded:

"George Shultz is a man of integrity. He is sensitive to the motivations of people. He is knowledgeable and my concept of a very decent human being."

Mr. Helstein and Prof. Shultz were brought together by their common interest in the Armour (Co.) Automation Fund Committee, of which Prof. Shultz and Clark Kerr are co-chairmen.

Prof. Shultz was a natural a few years back, when the Chicago-based union and the now diversified meat corporation sought an informed technician, rather than a celebrated chairman. Their problem was to ease the impact of technology which moves in a carcass and pushes out cellophane-wrapped hot dogs and bacon without benefit of human hands.

Mr. Nixon's new "labor man" does not await reports from the fields. He's a shirt-sleeve economist and arbitrator. He gets over to the plants themselves and questions union members who are being phased out by machines.

Prof. Shultz, a New Englander, had come to the University of Chicago via the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1962, he became Dean of Chicago University's Graduate School of Business. He took a leave for the year to get out to the "think tank" at Stanford, into which Dick Nixon reached for him.

There was nothing "Machiavellian or Byzantine about our selecting him," said one of the President-elect's slightly wary program analysts and priority seekers.

"We want someone useful in all places, not just a collection of names," said the man from the Pierre's inner guard. We want those who have the real technical skills so desperately needed, and the general compatability so vital to the developing strategy for government. For a moment, it sounded like the early days of '61. There is a difference. The Nixon talent scouts, Arthur Burns and company in this instance, have reached across the ideological sound barrier.

George Shultz, away back in '54, presented the major position paper at a CIO conference on automation and its implication for labor and management, and came out of it "pro-collective bargaining."

He and labor's own battaloions of economists are on a first name basis. Mostly, they like and trust each other.

But this has not, over the years, alienated the intellectual, philosophical and pragmatic policymakers policymakers of today's management movement.

I could substitute several vice-presidents of major national and internationa corporations for Ralph Helstein and use virtually the same quote.

Had Diogenes been among the Hotel Pierre's cabinet makers, he would not have had to light a candle in daytime to search for a man. Apparently, the insiders had found this paragon long ago and secretly fished him out of the "think tank."

They must have hooked him by his halo. Now, Mr. Nixon need only pray that the honeymoon lasts. Labor will be a fiery front these next few years

POOR CHARLIE SAYS:

Vice President Hubert has decided not to take any position in the administration of President-Elect Richard Nixon.

He is going to devote his time, according to his announcement, to rebuilding the Democratic party.

The idea is a commendable one.

The Humphrey absence won't keep other Democrats from joining Republicans in positions of trust in the Nixon administration.

Nixon will not be handicapped in his ambition to unite the American people because of the absence of Humphrey.

He will keep his free hand and so will his Democratic opponent for the presidency.

Too much unity could be bad for the country anyway.

Both U. S. Sen. Eugene McCarthy, and former Minnesota Democrat, and former Gov. George Wallace, Alabama Democrat, made important contributions to the presidential campaign by opposing the policies of President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The American people were in a better position to act intelligently because of their presence in the campaign.

The two-party system needs to be maintained. The American people will be the losers if it is not and if another attempt is made to form a concensus of all the diverse elements in the two major political parties.

There is a definite place for the loyal opposition, ready to join the policies they deem constructive and oppose those with which they disagree.

This is part of the American system of checks and balances.

It is valuable and should not either be eroded or discarded.

Humphrey's choice is a sound one not only for himself and the Democrats but for the country as well.

Dr. Emmett F. Hoctor, superintendent of of State Hospital No. 4 at Farmington from 1925 to 1963 is one among a dedicated group of physicians who came to be known for his many years of faithful service to his patients. The remarkable years he has given to his patients, his profession and his community have now been recorded in a recently published book, "Let Me Not Be Mad, Sweet Heaven!" by William and John Stewart.

Dr. Hoctor's devotion to his patients, his ability to overcome many of the prejudices and superstitions that impede the treatment of the mentally ill and his ability to win the confidence of the community at large–all are described from the first-hand knowledge of the authors, a former chaplain at the Farmington hospital and his son. It was not only Dr. Hoctor's support with his patients and the community that made his work so effective. Equally important was his progressive attitude toward changing concepts and methods in psychiatric medicine. He was in the forefront in the introduction of the Kettering hypertherm for the treatment of general paresis in the early 1930's, in the use of insulin coma therapy in the late 1930's, in the use of electro-convulsive therapy and pre-frontal lobotomy in the early 1940's and the use of psychotropic drugs in the 1950's.

Beyond all of this, however, the significance of Dr. Hoctor's career lies in his fulfillment of the highest aspirations of our profession. He embodied these in his selfless devotion to his work, h complete concern for the welfare of his patients and his dedication to the alleviation of suffering as the highest ideal of the profession. His career should stand as a reminder that the relationship of the physician to his patient remains the foundation for the best in medical care. It is to be hoped that this will not be sacrificed as Missouri's mental health program continues to grow.

One of the phenomenons of the 60's is the nation's preoccupation with psychedellic colors, and the introduction of new product colors. Not the least affected is the old reliable bicycle, say the Bicycle Institute of America. For 50 years, red was probably the most asked-for color, but public demand has brought bikes in gleaming fuschia, beige, electric yellow and a half-dozen other colors unheard of five years ago. Bicycle seats, too, are manufactured in matching colors. A New York City rend is for a gal to match her bike togs to her bicycle, in a number of dayglo colors.

JOLLY SPRIG OF PLASTIC

The people who would replace natural products by plastics have been going too far. We can't get used to such a thing as plastic mistletoe.

Plastic substitues for leather are useful. There's not enough leather in the world to make seat coverings for all the automobiles rolling off the assembly lines.

Plastic substitues for fur look good. And can help to diminish the slaughter of wild creatures which are threatened, by the thoughtlessness of mankind, with extention. As far plastic flowers, each to his own taste. They don't have much odor.

Plastic toys now are plentifully on the Christmas market. Fortunately, they are made of tougher stuff than those early models which came apart at baby's first blow. Dolls have plastic hair and plastic hands; it's a wonder they don't cry plastic tears.

Even Christmas trees can be artifical, of course. Made of aluminum or plastic, they can be used over and over again, year after year, like some 1967 auto license plates. And some even manage to look like real Christmas trees.

But plastic mistletoe?? Granted that the real berries sometimes fall off when one tries to nail it strategically over the doorway. Granted that it is a woodland parasite, growing on trees and bushes. But who would feel romantic standing under a sprig of polyethylene?

NEW YORK (AP) — One of the ordeals of life is the problem of getting rid of the remains of a turkey you win in the annual office Thanksgiving raffle.

For some reason unknown to man the prizes in these affairs are never reasonable-sized birds —say 10 to 12-pounders.

No, indeedy. They all suffer from gigantism, one of the curses of a myopic civilization which tends mistakenly to equate mere bulk with true quality. They weigh from 20 pounds on up, and are built like hulking feathered apes.

A man ceases to be a hero in his wife's eyes any day he lugs home a vast rubbery turkey he has won at the office. As he opens the door, full of pride but faint with exhaustion, she takes one look at the turkey slung over his bent back and yelps:

"What do you expect me to do with that—cook it or preserve it for the Smithsonian Institution?"

"Now what are you hollering about?" he says. "aren't you glad I won us a free Thanksgiving dinner?"

Free? Getting a supposedly free turkey at Thanksgiving is like being given a sacred white elephant in Thailand. The initial cost is nothing. But the upkeep is everything.

By the time you surround the turkey with proper fixings and buy liquor and white wine for the free-loading friends you invite to share your bounty, it is necessary to take out a second mortgage on your home to foot the bill.

The next morning when you take a bleary look at the turkey it hardly seems dented. How can you get rid of it?

There are 1,012 recipes for serving leftover turkey, but what stomach can face turkey, in any of its disguises, for 1,012 consecutive days?

You can't feed it to the cat, because the cat couldn't consume it in all he nine lifetimes. You can't give it to a poor relative, because no relative is so poor that he will accept a handme-down turkey.

You can't bundle it up and send it to Britain, because the British are still angry at us for palming off on them all the mountains of powdered eggs we had left after World War II.

Of course, you could dig a hole in the back yard big enough to bury it in, but a hole that large would take three days of steady digging.

The best way, however, to get rid of a leftover turkey is to avoid having it in the first place. When they announce at the office you have won a turkey, you say:

"No, thank you. Tear up my ticket. I almost lost my happy home once by bringing home an office Thanksgiving turkey. Never again!"

PRESUMPTUOUS' IF NOT OBNOXIOUS

Herewith, the statement issued by Stanford University Student Body President Denis Hayes on the announcement that Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer, president of Rice University, had been named new president of Stanford:

"The appointment ...without benefit of student participation or even student advice, represents a gross abuse by the Stanford trusteses of the legal powers vested in them.

"No students were asked to meet Dr. Pitzer prior to his selection, nor were any of us granted access to his files. We were not even informed that he was under consideration, so that we could have conducted some research of our own."

Student Hayes also complains that no sampling of Rice University students' opinions about Pitzer were made.

"In an age where the relationship of a university president to his students is of such critical importance, this kind of investigatory negligence is inexcusable."

It must be noted that Hayes, exercising his office as spokesman for all the thousands of the university's students, knows nothing about the new president and has nothing on or against him. That does not stop him from going on at length expressing in Eng. Lit. term paper language his vague doubts about the man or castigating the Stanford trustees for their temerity and questioning their wisdom.

Times have changed, of course, and the relationship of a university president to his students is undeniably of critical importance today. But if this is an example of the so-called "campus revolution," old folks over 30 may perhaps be excused if they wonder if it is an entirely desirable thing.

Young people can, at times, be presumptuous. Even obnoxious.

SOME people can preach; others can practice.

I was having lunch with a noted advocate of the golden rule in industry. His philosophy is that workers respond to decent treatment and that the employer who treats his men as he would like to be treated rarely encounters any labor trouble. He is not an employer, but he advises other employers.

The waiter asked this man an intelligent question about his order. Did he want orange juice or a raw orange?

"Can't you read?' the man snarled. 'It says orange and that's what I want.'

When the lunch had been served the man beckoned to the waiter and asked him why he had no rolls 'Did you order rolls?' asked the waiter, reaching for the bill. "Whether I ordered them or not I want them, so go and get them,' exclaimed the man.

He hadn't ordered rolls and he knew it.

We didn't discuss labor relations that day.

NOT A TAX LOOPHOLE

Some people speak of the depletion allowance on oil production as a "tax loophole" which should be closed. But it is not a "loophole" at all. Instead, it is evidence of longtime recognition by the United States Congress that every barrel of oil extracted from the ground, which is irreplaceable, depletes the value of the mineral lease on the ground, and the proceeds of selling the oil cannot be regarded as income. Any oil producer unwise enough to treat it all as income will likely find himself in difficulty in short order.

As long ago as 1910 the U.S. Treasury held that depletion of oil well s and mines was properly deducted from the gross income of operations. It was not until 1916, however, that the word "depletion" actually occurred in a federal tax law. At that time oil and gas well operators were permitted "a resonable allowance for depletion and for depreciation based upon cost, including cost of development not otherwise deducted." This was discovery value depletion, and it was carried also in the Revenue Acts of 1921 and 1924.

In 1926 Congress adopted the percentage depletion allowance system, which has been continued since then. Cogress must have had good reason to believe in the fairness of the depletion allowance to have kept it in effect year after year.

Depletion was not granted by Congress as a special privilege. It was not a subsidy. It simply recognizes the undeniable fact that each barrel of oil sold represents disposal of a part of the capital of the well's owner. HLH

-MINE SAFETY IGNORED-

On May 17, Drew Pearson and Jack Anderson reported that enforcement of the Coal Mine Safety Act of 1952 "has become a farce. Violation after violation has been cited since that act became law, but only one penalty has ever been assessed against a mine operator.

"Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall has appeared more interested in paths through parks and preservation of woods and flowers than in the protection of coal miners' health."

The recent West Virginia disaster involving the lives of 78 men would appear to bear out the Pearson-Anderson column.

Everybody likes him -- on all sides of the table. Since word seeped out that he could be Secretary of Labor, should he wish it, and that the is the policy maker for the President-elect, I tried to discover someone who dislikes him. I could not.

Praise come both from men we used to call captains of industry in less psychedelic years, and from men of labor we once wrote of as the militant mavericks in less statesman-like years.

No one who has bird-dogged this beat since its sit-down days ever would expect praise for a Nixon appointee from the unorthodox, erudite counselor, Ralph Helstein, who built the United Packinghouse Workers. But Mr. Helstein, a founder of the CIO and now an AFL—CIC vice-president, went silent for a full few minutes when I told him of the new administration top labor specialist. Then he responded:

"George Shultz is a man of integrity. He is sensitive to the motivations of people. He is knowledgeable and my concept of a very decent human being."

Mr. Helstein and Prof. Shultz were brought together by their common interest in the Armour (Co.) Automation Fund Committee, of which Prof. Shultz and Clark Kerr are co-chairmen.

Prof. Shultz was a natural a few years back, when the Chicago-based union and the now diversified meat corporation sought an informed technician, rather than a celebrated chairman. Their problem was to ease the impact of technology which moves in a carcass and pushes out cellophane-wrapped hot dogs and bacon without benefit of human hands.

Mr. Nixon's new "labor man" does not await reports from the fields. He's a shirt-sleeve economist and arbitrator. He gets over to the plants themselves and questions union members who are being phased out by machines.

Prof. Shultz, a New Englander, had come to the University of Chicago via the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. In 1962, he became Dean of Chicago University's Graduate School of Business. He took a leave for the year to get out to the "think tank" at Stanford, into which Dick Nixon reached for him.

There was nothing "Machiavellian or Byzantine about our selecting him," said one of the President-elect's slightly wary program analysts and priority seekers.

"We want someone useful in all places, not just a collection of names," said the man from the Pierre's inner guard. We want those who have the real technical skills so desperately needed, and the general compatability so vital to the developing strategy for government. For a moment, it sounded like the early days of '61. There is a difference. The Nixon talent scouts, Arthur Burns and company in this instance, have reached across the ideological sound barrier.

George Shultz, away back in '54, presented the major position paper at a CIO conference on automation and its implication for labor and management, and came out of it "pro-collective bargaining."

He and labor's own battaloions of economists are on a first name basis. Mostly, they like and trust each other.

But this has not, over the years, alienated the intellectual, philosophical and pragmatic policymakers policymakers of today's management movement.

I could substitute several vice-presidents of major national and internationa corporations for Ralph Helstein and use virtually the same quote.

Had Diogenes been among the Hotel Pierre's cabinet makers, he would not have had to light a candle in daytime to search for a man. Apparently, the insiders had found this paragon long ago and secretly fished him out of the "think tank."

They must have hooked him by his halo. Now, Mr. Nixon need only pray that the honeymoon lasts. Labor will be a fiery front these next few years

HOPELESS - GODLESS - LAWLESS

To be in a hopeless condition, is one of the most despairing, and dreaded conditions imaginable to man. The only thing I can think of, which would be worse, is to be hopeless and then, to be given up, as was the case with the Gentiles Paul refered to, in Romans the first chapter. In which he said, in verses 24, 26, and 28, "God gave them up." The evolution of moral corruption is outlined by the apostle Paul, in Romans chapter one, beginning with verse 18 thru 32. It would be well for us to consider the things which brought about their degeneracy. It seems to me that many of our society are taking the same steps, which they took, that brought about conditions, that caused God to give them up. Knowledge is "the thing" for today, knowledge to many solves all problems. Statistics say, "The world's knowledge doubled in the last ten years." While this upsurge in knowledge, our troubles have increased considerably.

Crime has climbed 89%, from 1960 to 1967, compared to a 10% climb in population. Paul said, in Romans 1:22, "Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools," Self imposed wisdom is very short of God attributed wisdom. Christ said, the wise are they which "hear and do" what He says, Matthew 7:24. But instead of conforming our lives to harmonize with God's word, many of us seek to change the word, to harmonize with our lives.

Many religious groups sugest a philosophy of life totally unrelated to Divine revelation. To make la s in harmony with their desires, is characteristic of the type Paul described in Romans one. Even some of the religious leaders of our day have joined up with the hoodlums, in promoting lawlessness. They need to read and practice (Rom. 13:1-7). Paul when he wrote to the Ephesians stated, that they formally were in a hopeless state. Stating, (Eph. 2:12) "having no hope, and without God in the world." Their hopeless state was due to the fact that they were Godless. Thus, they were without hope because they were without God.

The remedy for this condition in them is the same where ever and whenever, we find man without hope. We today are without hope for the same reason they were without hope. Isaiah said, "But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you, that he will not hear." And Paul said, "All have sinned" (Rom. 3:23). And so man has built a wall of sin, which separated and left him without God. And certainly anyone without God is without hope. Sin is lawlessness. (1 Jno. 3:4) asv) or less-law, to act without law. And this includes more than fleshly sins, all action without law would constitute sin. God's remedy for this grave sickness is accomplished through His Son, Christ Jesus. To accept Christ includes more than "saying" there is also "doing". Christ should influence our thinking, as well as our action. Paul said "Think on these things," and also, "Those things do." (Phil. 4:8, 9).

This generation seems to thrive on lawlessness. Numbers of teenagers and young adults are rebelling to the established system. They have been reared in an environment of lawlessness, and wonder whats wrong? And set about to correct an already wrong situation, by advocating something worse. Remember young folks if grow-up failed, or as you would say, "blew it" they did by their own standards, and certainly not the Lord's. If you really want to protest against the system, why not try the Lord's way? It won't fail.

Houston, Florida State to Clash

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston and Florida State play a college football game tonight in the Gator Bowl but their high-powered offenses may turn it into the Scoreboard Bowl.

The game is the only one on tonight's schedule. Four were played Thursday as two bowl berths were settled and 16 more are on tap Saturday as the reguiar season comes to a close, save for the Dec. 7 meeting in University Park, Pa., between Penn State and Syracuse.

Texas won its way into a Cotton Bowl date against Tennessee by trouncing traditional rival Texas A&M 35-14 Thursday.

The victory gained the Longhorns a share of the Southwest Conference championship with Arkansas but Texas goes to the Cotton Bowl by virtue of a 39-29 win over the Razorbacks. Arkansas settled for the Sugar Bowl against unbeaten Georgia.

Elsewhere, Liberty Bowlbound Virginia Tech walloped VMI 55-6, Tulsa sent Wichita State to a winless season 23-7 and, in a night game, Louisiana Tech, which is in the Grantland Rice Bowl, knocked off its fourth major opponent 42-24.

Saturday's slate is highlighted by the meeting in Los Angeles between second-ranked Southern California and No. 9 Notre Dame. Other top attractions include Army-Navy, Georgia Tech-Georgia, Tennessee-Vanderbilt, Oklahoma-Oklahoma State, Alabama-Auburn and Arizona State-Arizona.

Tonight's pairing should be a wild one. Houston, ranked 10th, is the top offensive team in the nation with an all-time mark of 5,185 yards. The Cougars also lead in scoring with an average of 45 points a game.

Paul Gipson is fifth in rushing with 1,386 yards and the Ken Bailey-to-Elmo Wright combination is a passing threat. The Cougars have slaughtered Idaho 77-3 and Tulsa 100-6 in their last two starts. To make matters worse, they rank fifth nationally in total defense.

"We've got a chance against Houston," said Coach Bill Peterson of Florida State, "in spite of the fact they have what may just be the best college football team in America."

The Seminoles have a potent air attack of their own. Flanker Ron Sellers ranks this season in receiving and has gained more career yards than anyone in history, 3,384. Bill Cappleman does the throwing.

Texas raced to a 35-0 halftime lead over the Texas Aggies behind a balanced attack and a defense that intercepted five of Edd Hargett's passes. Chris Gilbert gained 85 yards in 25 carries and finished his regular season career third among alltime runners with 3,231 yards.

Quarterback Wayne Humphries passed for three touchdowns in his first varsity start to lead Virginia Tech over VMI. The defense picked off four passes and recovered two fumbles as the Gobblers made Turkey Day a field day.

Mike Stripling completed 26 of 51 passes for 336 yards and two touchdowns as Tulsa turned back stubborn Wichita State. The Hurricanes led only 3-0 but Stripling threw scoring passes of 16 yards to Harry Wood and seven to Les Bogers in the final period.

One major and two mild upsets were all that kept us from putting that perfect night on the books . . . but we can't expect such a miracle . . . yet.

We had a 13 to 16 night Tuesday, lifting our average toward the 80 per cent mark. For the season, we're 36 of 46 for a .782 mark. Not bad for an amateur.

A light schedule faces us tonight . . . so our chances of a perfect night might be even better . . . Let's see how it comes out.

Southland at Hayti Central - Now Central showed its style in opening fashion last week in the North Pemiscot tournament, but slacked off after nipping Gideon. We see them taking this one and getting back in form. Hayti 72, Southland 64.

Fisk at Bell City - The Cubs seem to be on the winning end of this match. Our call is close. Bell City 59, Fisk 56.

South Pemiscot at North Pemiscot -- It's the North all the way in this Pemiscot county battle. The Mustangs seem headed for an excellent year. North 77, South 64.

Gideon at Holcomb -- The Bulldogs have been taking their losses and will deal out one tonight. Gideon 63, Holcomb 51.

Hayti at Caruthersville - This rivalry is always a crowd pleaser and one hard to call . . . We say that the Indians have the mark in this one. Hayti 63, Caruthersville 55.

That's our calls for tonight . . .

Gideon's game at Matthews next week has been scheduled for tomorrow night. We see the Pirates rebounding from their first loss in 28 games Saturday . . . Matthews 88, Gideon 64.

Perryville, tri-champs of the northern division of the Southeast Missouri football conference, will pit its 10-1 record against the 10-0-1 slate of Marshall Saturday afternoon at University City high school in St. Louis for the championship of the 3A class of the Missouri High Activities Association. It is the first year of state football playoffs in Missouri.

The game will be brought to Southeast Missouri fans over KMPL radio, with Ken Hawkins and Larry Dale doing the play by play. Broadcast time is 1:15 p.m.

Game time is 1:30 p.m.

Perryville shared the northern division crown with Sikeston and Cape Girardeau Central, two 4A class schools.

Pairings for the Missouri high school football playoffs were announced Monday by the State High School Athletic Association.

All games will begin Saturday at 1:30 p.m. The schedule:

Class A - Princeton vs. Cass Midway at Raytown High School.

Class AA - Seneca vs. Cabool at John F. Kennedy Stadium in Springfield.

Class AAA - Perryville vs. Marshall at University High School in St. Louis County.

Class AAAA - Oak Park vs. McCluer at University of Memorial Stadium in Columbia.

Win May Cost Eagles Prize

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Joe Kuharich, perhaps the most troubled man in the ranks of pro football head coaches, finally won one. Which could make him a loser.

Kuharich, however, didn't seem concerned with the possibility of losing the first draft pick—probably Heisman Trophy winner O.J. Simpson—after his Philadelphia Eagles snapped an 11-game losing string Thanksgiving Day with a 12-0 victory over Detroit.

"The draft is beyond here," Kuharich said after the longest losing string of the pro season ended in the mud and goo at Detroit.

"We play the season. We're concerned with winning and playing a game and that's all we work towards now."

Dallas, meanwhile, clinched at least a tie for the top spot in the National Football League's Capitol Division with a 29-20 verdict over Washington in the only other NFL game played—a verdict that left Redskin Coach Otto Graham hopping mad.

"I thought the officials stole the game from us," Graham said after the Redskins were assessed 124 yards in penalties, many of them at crucial times.

In the American Football League, Kansas City whipped Houston 24-10, allowing idle New York to clinch the Eastern Division title, and Oakland clipped Buffalo 13-10. That dropped Buffalo's record to 1-11-1 and possibly put the Bills in position to claim the first draft pick.

In the NFL Sunday, Atlanta is at Baltimore, St. Louis at Minnesota, New York at Pittsburgh, Green Bay at San Cleveland and Chicago at New Francisco, Los Angeles at Orleans.

Matthews and Lilbourn, ranked one-two in the Bernie tournament also are members of the poll and will be shooting for the Friday night finals.

The Oran tourney will have a consolation bracket playoff.

News Machine Transmits 1,000 Words per Minute

KANSAS CITY (AP)—A machine that can transmit news at a speed of 1,000 words a minute was described Monday by E. Blanton Kimbell, research and development manager for the Associated Press.

Speaking at a meeting of Kansas and Missouri Associated Press publishers, Kimbell said the system already has been tested between New York and Miami.

The machine, completely noiseless, eliminates the typewriter keys that strike the paper under the old system. Instead, it has a moving nozzle that literally draws each letter with a stream of ink.

Next year the AP will transmit a complete box within 60 seconds after the game ends, and the actual transmission time will be 40 seconds, Kimbell said.

He said the AP is using four computers to make high-speed transmission of stock market reports and send text that is justified and hyphenated.

DAILY SIKESTON STANDARD

Dear Editor:

Members of Congress have properly announced they will give urgent consideration to a change in the presidential electoral system as soon as Congress convenes. The Senate and House will consider the merits of the different proposals and may decide to pass a Constitutional Amendment although it requires a 2/3 rds majority in each House. If they wish to change the present system for the better, they must consider provisions of a bill from the standpoint of State Legislatures. If they pass an amendment which will not be ratified by the Legislatures of 3/4ths of the States, all of their efforts will have been in vain and we will still be saddled with the present antiquated Electoral College system which, condemned by all, is for many good reasons admittedly better than the Direct Vote. If delegated voting is not better than populor voting, the populace should assemble and enact the laws instead of electing Members of Congress.

Constructively,
H.L. Hunt

Santa and the HIPPIES

By LUCRECE BEALE

CHAPTER 1

Ding Dong Henry Wetherspoon was a terror of a kid.

HERE it is Christmas again — well, almost Christmas — and the question is: "Have you been good?"

Have you been nice to your Mama and helped set the table? Said "Yes, sir!" to your Daddy when he asked you to shovel the snow from the walk?

Have you hung your coat in the closet and come to meals on time? Studied your lessons and practiced the piano without being told? Put your toys where they belong and used a handkerchief when you should?

If you haven't been doing any of these things you better get busy because the first thing Santa wants to know when he's making out his list is "Has he been good?"

If you have been good, Santa's mighty pleased and you can bet your stocking will be overflowing on Christmas morning.

But the strange thing is — if you haven't been good, if, in fact, you've been perfectly awful, Santa will fill your stocking just the same.

But he'll be sad about it and he really won't like it at all.

There once was a boy named Henry Wetherspoon who was a terror of a kid. He called himself Ding Dong and he didn't care at all about being nice to his Mama or polite to his teachers even if Christmas was coming.

Ding Dong never took baths. He never changed his socks or underwear. He wouldn't comb his hair or brush his teeth and he sneaked out of bed in the middle of the night to watch the late late late show on TV.

He teased his sisters and played jokes on his brothers and hid his Father's shaving cream to make him late for the 8:15. He raided the refrigerator all day long and turned up his nose at the dinners his Mother worked so hard to prepare. He passed notes in school and talked out loud and went to sleep when arithmetic class came around.

Oh, he was a problem and neither his folks nor his teachers knew what in the world to do with Ding Dong Henry Wetherspoon.

But Santa Claus knew.

He was going over his list of boys and girls and making up his mind what to bring them for Christmas. When he got to Ding Dong's name he said, "What about this one? What about Henry Wetherspoon?"

Santa has a helper an elf named Edgar who runs errands for him all over the world. In the course of his travels Edgar learned a lot about what children were up to when they thought no one was looking. So when Santa asked about Henry Wetherspoon, Edgar threw up his hands and wailed:

"That boy is impossible!"

Santa took off his spectacles and leaned back from his desk. "Tch. tch," he said reprovingly. "There's some good in every boy."

"Not this one!" snorted Edgar. He told Santa all he knew about Henry Wetherspoon. How bad he was and how unhappy he made all the folks who loved him and worried about him all the time.

Santa rubbed his eyes and rocked a while in his rocking chair. Then he said:

"Go and talk to him. Perhaps he'd like to live in Hippieville."

Tomorrow: Hippieville

Rat Control Program Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after a chastised Congress authorized $40 million for rat control, not a single dollar has been spent.

The Public Health Service hopes it will soon get Bureau of the Budget approval to start shipping perhaps $15 million to some of the 47 units of local government which have applied for rat money.

But even if approval comes, the money won't directly exterminate a single rat. Instead it will finance projects designed to teach slum dwellers how to store garbage, get rid of rat harborages and so forth.

"There's not enough money to get rid of the rat population of the whole country," said a Public Health Service spokesman. "This is a means of instructing local residents."

All 47 applicants won't get financing.

"There's only enough to give to the best of the lot," said a spokesman. "We've already pretty much rank ordered the applications." The agency declines to say who is in line for the grants, but Baltimore and Philadelphia—confident they will get money—have already begun to publicize projects.

Residents of rat-infested neighborhoods would be employed under some proposals. Most projects would work through neighborhood groups and normally city health departments would be heavily involved.

The congressional rat controversy popped into the public eye July 20, 1967, when the House narrowly rejected a $40 million, two-year plan submitted by the Johnson administration to eradicate rats in slums.

Derisive comments of some House members opposed to the bill drew angry replies from President Johnson and administration officials. Rep. James A. Haley, D-Fla., suggested: "Why not just buy some cats and turn them loose on the street."

On Nov. 21, 1967, Congress gave final approval to a compromise $598 million health aid bill to which had been added $40 million to fight rats.

But while the authorization bill passed, Congress never voted the $20 million to run the fiscal 1968 portion of the program. It did finally approve $20 million for use in fiscal 1969, the budget year that began last July 1.

Use of even this much has been held up pending Budget Bureau decisions on how much spending money government agencies actually will get in light of Congress' edict that over-all federal outlays be slashed $6 billion.

The Public Health Service now expects about $15 million to be available for the rat program.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

MORAL STANDARDS THE BASIS OF LAW

Law represents the efforts of men to codify moral standards and to fix penalties for those who will not observe them. Moral standardspreceded the law. They came from man's concept of the ethical ideals which he derives from God. When men cease to believe in God, there are no such ideals. Hence, there are no moral standards to be translated into law. We are forced to conclude that men who do not delieve in God have few, if any, moral ideals upon which to erect a moral law. That is why when faith in God disappears, moral standards crumble. Laws against murder, abortion and homosexuality are ignored or repealed. The new idea is that men do not sin and do wrong; they are simply ill, uninformed, their diet has been inadequate, their training insufficient, or the standards themselves are not valid.

This leads us to the conclusion that freedom, free government and economic well-being are possible only for men whose faith in God leads them to accept moral standards which, in turn, imposes upon the the necessity to tell the truth, to be honest, fair, generous and kind in their dealing with their fellows. If they believe such ideals come from God, they will observe them . If they have no God, they have no ideals and the only important thing to them is to get what they want. This they will then do anywhere, any time and in any way they can. It is not sin, it is not violation of moral standards, for without God there are no such concepts.

When men arrive at this state the strong exploit the weak, and tyranny is inevitable. In place of voluntary discipline which men accept with belief in God, we have only the discipline imposed upon the by the secret police who owe allegiance only to the dictaor. Men who do not believe in God turn to the state as the only other means of establishing discipline. Instead of the voluntary discipline which one imposes upon himself because he believes it is the will of God, we then have only the cruel discipline enforced by the totalitarian state.

Careful reasoning, therefore, leads us to the conclusion that the decline of the West arises straight out of its loss of faith in God. Men become interested in crime, sexual abuses, in power, aggrandizement, riches and fame in inverse proportion as they lose their faith in God and the moral ideals which He has ordained.

(Q0340) VIETNAM (HTNC) Nov. 21—Equipment Operator Second Class Emory C. Oliver, USN, 21, son of Mrs. Helen Oliver of 307 Heath St., Sikeston, Mo., is serving with U.S. Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 121 in Vietnam.

His unit is on its second deployment to Vietnam and is providing construction support to U.S. and Allied forces in the five northernmost provinces of South Vietnam.

In Vietnam, the "Seabees" provide technical assistance to villagers with construction projects. They also build airstrips, temporary housing, port facilities, fuel storage tanks, drill water wells and construct other facilities as they become necessary.

As the "Seabees" conduct the routine job of contruction in support of combat forces, they may become targets for enemy snipers. When such incidents occur, the builders become defenders and put to use the combat skills they acquired

By LUCRECE BEALE

CHAPTER I

Ding Dong Henry Wetherspoon was a terror of a kid.

HERE it is Christmas again — well, almost Christmas — and the question is: "Have you been good?"

Have you been nice to your Mama and helped set the table? Said "Yes, sir!" to your Daddy when he asked you to shovel the snow from the walk?

Have you hung your coat in the closet and come to meals on time? Studied your lessons and practiced the piano without being told? Put your toys where they belong and used a handkerchief when you should?

If you haven't been doing any of these things you better get busy because the first thing Santa wants to know when he's making out his list is "Has he been good?"

If you have been good, Santa's mighty pleased and you can bet your stocking will be overflowing on Christmas morning.

But the strange thing is — if you haven't been good, if, in fact, you've been perfectly awful, Santa will fill your stocking just the same.

But he'll be sad about it and he really won't like it at all.

There once was a boy named Henry Wetherspoon who was a terror of a kid. He called himself Ding Dong and he didn't care at all about being nice to his Mama or polite to his teachers even if Christmas was coming.

Ding Dong never took baths. He never changed his socks or underwear. He wouldn't comb his hair or brush his teeth and he sneaked out of bed in the middle of the night to watch the late late late show on TV.

He teased his sisters and played jokes on his brothers and hid his Father's shaving cream to make him late for the 8:15. He raided the refrigerator all day long and turned up his nose at the dinners his Mother worked so hard to prepare. He passed notes in school and talked out loud and went to sleep when arithmetic class came around.

Oh, he was a problem and neither his folks nor his teachers knew what in the world to do with Ding Dong Henry Wetherspoon.

But Santa Claus knew.

He was going over his list of boys and girls and making up his mind what to bring them for Christmas. When he got to Ding Dong's name he said, "What about this one? What about Henry Wetherspoon?"

Santa has a helper an elf named Edgar — who runs errands for him all over the world. In the course of his travels Edgar learned a lot about what children were up to when they thought no one was looking. So when Santa asked about Henry Wetherspoon, Edgar threw up his hands and wailed:

"That boy is impossible!"

Santa took off his spectacles and leaned back from his desk. "Tch. tch," he said reprovingly. "There's some good in every boy."

"Not this one!" snorted Edgar. He told Santa all he knew about Henry Wetherspoon. How bad he was and how unhappy he made all the folks who loved him and worried about him all the time.

Santa rubbed his eyes and rocked a while in his rocking chair. Then he said:

"Go and talk to him. Perhaps he'd like to live in Hippieville."

Tomorrow: Hippieville

Rat Control Program Lagging

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after a chastised Congress authorized $40 million for rat control, not a single dollar has been spent.

The Public Health Service hopes it will soon get Bureau of the Budget approval to start shipping perhaps $15 million to some of the 47 units of local government which have applied for rat money.

But even if approval comes, the money won't directly exterminate a single rat. Instead it will finance projects designed to teach slum dwellers how to store garbage, get rid of rat harborages and so forth.

"There's not enough money to get rid of the rat population of the whole country," said a Public Health Service spokesman. "This is a means of instructing local residents."

All 47 applicants won't get financing.

"There's only enough to give to the best of the lot," said a spokesman. "We've already pretty much rank ordered the applications." The agency declines to say who is in line for the grants, but Baltimore and Philadelphia—confident they will get money—have already begun to publicize projects.

Residents of rat-infested neighborhoods would be employed under some proposals. Most projects would work through neighborhood groups and normally city health departments would be heavily involved.

The congressional rat controversy popped into the public eye July 20, 1967, when the House narrowly rejected a $40 million, two-year plan submitted by the Johnson administration to eradicate rats in slums.

Derisive comments of some House members opposed to the bill drew angry replies from President Johnson and administration officials. Rep. James A. Haley, D-Fla., suggested: "Why not just buy some cats and turn them loose on the street."

On Nov. 21, 1967, Congress gave final approval to a compromise $598 million health aid bill to which had been added $40 million to fight rats.

But while the authorization bill passed, Congress never voted the $20 million to run the fiscal 1968 portion of the program. It did finally approve $20 million for use in fiscal 1969, the budget year that began last July 1.

Use of even this much has been held up pending Budget Bureau decisions on how much spending money government agencies actually will get in light of Congress' edict that over-all federal outlays be slashed $6 billion.

The Public Health Service now expects about $15 million to be available for the rat program.

MORAL STANDARDS
THE BASIS OF LAW

Law represents the efforts of men to codify moral standards and to fix penalties for those who will not observe them. Moral standardspreceded the law. They came from man's concept of the ethical ideals which he derives from God. When men cease to believe in God, there are no such ideals. Hence, there are no moral standards to be translated into law. We are forced to conclude that men who do not believe in God have few, if any, moral ideals upon which to erect a moral law. That is why when faith in God disappears, moral standards crumble. Laws against murder, abortion and homosexuality are ignored or repealed. The new idea is that men do not sin and do wrong; they are simply ill, uninformed, their diet has been inadequate, their training insufficient, or the standards themselves are not valid.

This leads us to the conclusion that freedom, free government and economic well-being are possible only for men whose faith in God leads them to accept moral standards which, in turn, imposes upon the the necessity to tell the truth, to be honest, fair, generous and kind in their dealing with their fellows. If they believe such ideals come from God, they will observe them . If they have no God, they have no ideals and the only important thing to them is to get what they want. This they will then do anywhere, any time and in any way they can. It is not sin, it is not violation of moral standards, for without God there are no such concepts.

When men arrive at this state the strong exploit the weak, and tyranny is inevitable. In place of voluntary discipline which men accept with belief in God, we have only the discipline imposed upon the by the secret police who owe allegiance only to the dictaor. Men who do not believe in God turn to the state as the only other means of establishing discipline. Instead of the voluntary discipline which one imposes upon himself because he believes it is the will of God, we then have only the cruel discipline enforced by the totalitarian state.

Careful reasoning, therefore, leads us to the conclusion that the decline of the West arises straight out of its loss of faith in God. Men become interested in crime, sexual abuses, in power, aggrandizement, riches and fame in inverse proportion as they lose their faith in God and the moral ideals which He has ordained.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) A team made up chiefly of coaches at the Air Force Academy withdrew from the Colorado semipro baseball tournament after winning one game and losing one. POLLY'S POINTERS

One Has a Problem; One Has an Answer

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am 22, have been married three years and have an 18-month-old son. I enjoy being a housewife and mother but sometimes feel like a failure at getting my housework done efficiently. I feel so frustrated as I try to wash, cook, bake, sew, iron, water the yard, do the dishes, mop and vacuum, run errands—all this on some sort of a weekly schedule to keep things livable and pleasant for my family and guests. I am sure there must be others who feel this way. Perhaps someone could give me a solution in the way of a weekly, bi-weekly or monthly schedule.

Polly, thank you so much for a helpful column. Do you have any books on housekeeping hints?—FRANCES

DEAR FRANCES—I am sure there are many young, and not so young, homemakers who must feel as you do. We hope to hear from some who have learned along the way. I can imagine the frustrated feelings you have. We have all had it at one time or another. Often we try to do too much, have to resort to short cuts and leave the more "creative" things until our children are older. I do have a paperback book, "Polly's Homemaking Pointers," which can be bought on many bookstands or order through your local newspaper.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When baking, I bake everything in double quantities as a time-saver. Also, when making my monthly trip to the bank, I get two rolls of quarters, a roll of nickels and three rolls of pennies so I always have change, particularly for my four children's lunch money.

In the days when a load of diapers was a "must," I would put the clean, dry, unfolded diapers in a laundry basket kept in the bottom of the linen closet and folded the diapers just as I needed them.—CAROL

DEAR POLLY—I have my housework all done by 8 in the morning. Maybe others would like to try my system. The children make their own beds and straighten their rooms before going to school. I only mop and wax the floors once a week. The children's clothes are laid out at night, and baths are taken then so there is no early morning scramble. When they leave for school at 7:30 I start my housework. By 8 my bed is made, dishes washed, floors swept, living room dusted and straightened. Everyone cleans up after himself in the bathroom. My three children are all under nine.

I have the rest of the day to sew or do as I want. I am room mother at school for each of the children. I make all our clothes except the boys' pants, sometimes 10 or 12 outfits a week. One day a week is for heavy cleaning. I iron as I dry the clothes each day, about 30 minutes. Don't let work pile up, don't let things get mussed and you do not have to spend all day cleaning. It is a favor to them to teach your children to be neat and you have more time to enjoy them.—C. G. S.

NEW DELHI (AP) Rita, the little chimp at the zoo, had a Roman holiday one night and made the best of it.

She walked out of her unlatched cell and took a stroll in the cool lawns of the zoo, to the wonderment of the other inmates and the shrieking of the frightened caged birds.

She walked into a familiar room the veterinary surgeon's and helped herself to a cool drink from the refrigerator.

The surgeon found her seated in his chair when he reported for duty in the morning. She needed no persuasion. Clasping the surgeon's hand, she walked back into her cell.

POLLY'S POINTERS
One Has a Problem; One Has an Answer

By POLLY CRAMER

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I am 22, have been married three years and have an 18-month-old son. I enjoy being a housewife and mother but sometimes feel like a failure at getting my housework done efficiently. I feel so frustrated as I try to wash, cook, bake, sew, iron, water the yard, do the dishes, mop and vacuum, run errands—all this on some sort of a weekly schedule to keep things livable and pleasant for my family and guests. I am sure there must be others who feel this way. Perhaps someone could give me a solution in the way of a weekly, bi-weekly or monthly schedule.

Polly, thank you so much for a helpful column. Do you have any books on housekeeping hints?—FRANCES

DEAR FRANCES—I am sure there are many young, and not so young, homemakers who must feel as you do. We hope to hear from some who have learned along the way. I can imagine the frustrated feelings you have. We have all had it at one time or another. Often we try to do too much, have to resort to short cuts and leave the more "creative" things until our children are older. I do have a paperback book, "Polly's Homemaking Pointers," which can be bought on many bookstands or order through your local newspaper.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—When baking, I bake everything in double quantities as a time-saver. Also, when making my monthly trip to the bank, I get two rolls of quarters, a roll of nickels and three rolls of pennies so I always have change, particularly for my four children's lunch money.

In the days when a load of diapers was a "must," I would put the clean, dry, unfolded diapers in a laundry basket kept in the bottom of the linen closet and folded the diapers just as I needed them.—CAROL

DEAR POLLY—I have my housework all done by 8 in the morning. Maybe others would like to try my system. The children make their own beds and straighten their rooms before going to school. I only mop and wax the floors once a week. The children's clothes are laid out at night, and baths are taken then so there is no early morning scramble. When they leave for school at 7:30 I start my housework. By 8 my bed is made, dishes washed, floors swept, living room dusted and straightened. Everyone cleans up after himself in the bathroom. My three children are all under nine.

I have the rest of the day to sew or do as I want. I am room mother at school for each of the children. I make all our clothes except the boys' pants, sometimes 10 or 12 outfits a week. One day a week is for heavy cleaning. I iron as I dry the clothes each day, about 30 minutes. Don't let work pile up, don't let things get mussed and you do not have to spend all day cleaning. It is a favor to them to teach your children to be neat and you have more time to enjoy them.—C. G. S.

Brokerages Unprepared For Boom in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite its obvious prosperity, as evidenced by the big bonus checks now being readied for pre-Christmas delivery to workers, the brokerage business today is one beset by many trials and contradictions.

The outer calm, the neat and precise manners, the aura of confidence, hide failures in foresight, in technological knowhow, in self-regulation and even in self-identity.

For years, apparently, these defects were hidden from view, even from the sight of those deeply involved. But in recent months no business has had its weaknesses and failures so nakedly revealed.

To the credit of the stock market community, sweat and effort is now being exerted, but it will be a long time before the sediment of procrastination is shoveled away. It was piled high.

The brokerage business for years sought high volume by advertising and promoting the value of participating in American enterprise, but when the volume came many firms hadn't prepared for it. Even the stock exchange ticker proved inadequate.

The stock and bond industry is essentially service oriented, but some of the better known firms, having been caught unprepared for high volume, cannot now provide the high quality services that customers expect.

The business preaches the necessity of self-regulation, but it has permitted obvious failures in its methods to become accepted, only to be challenged later by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Some members, for example, have argued for a commission structure with a minimum at the bottom but no maximum commission at the top, although in most businesses volume means discounts. Now it has been ordered from without.

The principal medium for handling business is paper, whether it be dollar bills or stock or bond certificates, but the industry has failed to develop a technology to handle the mountains of paper brought by good times.

Today it has the opportunity for more prosperity than ever before, but some of the largest firms have been forced to curtail business, even to close their doors and lay off workers, because they can't handle prosperity.

The industry has spent millions to encourage the small investors into the market but now some of the best known firms refuse his business, suggesting he buy mutual funds instead, even though the biggest brokerage house of all won't handle any mutual fund business.

MGM Not Ready to Play Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's a funny thing about this town," said a veteran MGM studio official. "People are ready to bury you while you're still breathing."

Dire predictions concerning the state of MGM's health have been made because of recent symptoms. Long wracked by struggles for power within the corporation, MGM is finally due for a change of management. Financier Edgar M. Bronfman won control of MGM and a new president is being sought to succeed Robert H. O'Brien.

How the switch in power will affect the Culver City studio is a matter of great concern in the film capital. This concern intensified with the news that the studio had disbanded its casting, makeup and music departments. It seemed like a drastic move for MGM, once the beststaffed studio in Hollywood.

A studio official explained: "MGM is tailoring its operation to fit the production schedule for the coming year. There will be increased activity in independent productions to be released through MGM. The independent producers will be able to select their own personnel to handle casting, music, etc.

"The studio now employes 1,800 full-time employes, compared to 2,000 to 2,500 during peak periods. So you can see the studio is not dead yet."

But it is obviously ailing. MGM's management has still not decided what to do with the sprawling studio which once put forth a feature movie per week. Its huge sound stages remain empty and almost unused. In the past few years television series like "Dr. Kildare" and "The Man From Uncle" kept some of the stages occupied. But MGM had no series on the networks this season.

During his years as president of MGM, O'Brien fostered a plan to sell off the Culver City real estate and create a brandnew studio in the Conejo Valley 40 miles north of Los Angeles. Property was optioned and plans sketched out, but little has been heard about the plan in recent months.

The reason is obvious. MGM has other problems to settle before it can build a new studio.

The problems were visible in the recent financial statement for fiscal 1968. Profits were down a third, from $14,029,000 to $9,409,000. MGM Records dropped from a $2 million profit to a $4 million deficit. Film rentals fell almost $2 million to $21½ million; TV network sales dropped a half-million to $1.2 million. The drop in all divisions was precipitous in the second half of the fiscal year.

The Christmas parade will start from the Main and Marshall St., intersection Dec. 5, and all entries are asked to be present by 6:30 p.m. The parade starts at 7 o'clock.

The treasure hunt will be conducted as it was last year. Local merchants will place numbered prizes in their windows, and will give away free numbered tickets starting Nov. 26.

Morehouse Dogs to Be Severely Curbed

MOREHOUSE--Residents here are required to purchase dog license tags on or before April 1, as a result of an ordinance enacted by city council meeting.

The ordinance, which has been under debate, was passed by a three-to-two margin. The four aldermen were split evenly. The tie break came when Mayor I.B. McNew Sr. cast his vote favoring the measure. Aldermen who opposed the law were Frank Marshall, ward two, and Woodrow Bolen, ward one. Favoring the ordinance were Aldermen Lee Haley, ward one, and Delbert Payne, ward two.

Citizens attended the meeting to lodge recommendations and complaints about the ordinance.

It was decided that Mayor McNew will appoint a humane officer.

A dog pound area is also yet to be selected. The council set a $2 fee for licenses, which can be purchased in two months from City Clerk Manuel J. Taylor. It was also determined that dogs must be vaccinated.

The ordinance makes it unlawful for persons to allow their dogs to run at large on any street or in any public place. Should a dog be impounded the owner may redeem the animal by paying a $4 penalty in addition to purchasing a license and having the dog vaccinated.

Impounded animals will not be kept more than 10 days. A boarding fee will be determined by Mayor McNew.

Persons desiring to walk their dogs may do so with a leash, which cannot exceed 10 feet.

The law prohibits persons to keep dogs, who frequently bark, howl or yelp, or one that chases pedestrians, horses or vehicles.

Brokerages Unprepared For Boom in Business

NEW YORK (AP) — Despite its obvious prosperity, as evidenced by the big bonus checks now being readied for pre-Christmas delivery to workers, the brokerage business today is one beset by many trials and contradictions.

The outer calm, the neat and precise manners, the aura of confidence, hide failures in foresight, in technological knowhow, in self-regulation and even in self-identity.

For years, apparently, these defects were hidden from view, even from the sight of those deeply involved. But in recent months no business has had its weaknesses and failures so nakedly revealed.

To the credit of the stock market community, sweat and effort is now being exerted, but it will be a long time before the sediment of procrastination is shoveled away. It was piled high.

The brokerage business for years sought high volume by advertising and promoting the value of participating in American enterprise, but when the volume came many firms hadn't prepared for it. Even the stock exchange ticker proved inadequate.

The stock and bond industry is essentially service oriented, but some of the better known firms, having been caught unprepared for high volume, cannot now provide the high quality services that customers expect.

The business preaches the necessity of self-regulation, but it has permitted obvious failures in its methods to become accepted, only to be challenged later by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Some members, for example, have argued for a commission structure with a minimum at the bottom but no maximum commission at the top, although in most businesses volume means discounts. Now it has been ordered from without.

The principal medium for handling business is paper, whether it be dollar bills or stock or bond certificates, but the industry has failed to develop a technology to handle the mountains of paper brought by good times.

Today it has the opportunity for more prosperity than ever before, but some of the largest firms have been forced to curtail business, even to close their doors and lay off workers, because they can't handle prosperity.

The industry has spent millions to encourage the small investors into the market but now some of the best known firms refuse his business, suggesting he buy mutual funds instead, even though the biggest brokerage house of all won't handle any mutual fund business.

MGM Not Ready to Play Dead

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "It's a funny thing about this town," said a veteran MGM studio official. "People are ready to bury you while you're still breathing."

Dire predictions concerning the state of MGM's health have been made because of recent symptoms. Long wracked by struggles for power within the corporation, MGM is finally due for a change of management. Financier Edgar M. Bronfman won control of MGM and a new president is being sought to succeed Robert H. O'Brien.

How the switch in power will affect the Culver City studio is a matter of great concern in the film capital. This concern intensified with the news that the studio had disbanded its casting, makeup and music departments. It seemed like a drastic move for MGM, once the beststaffed studio in Hollywood.

A studio official explained: "MGM is tailoring its operation to fit the production schedule for the coming year. There will be increased activity in independent productions to be released through MGM. The independent producers will be able to select their own personnel to handle casting, music, etc.

"The studio now employes 1,800 full-time employes, compared to 2,000 to 2,500 during peak periods. So you can see the studio is not dead yet."

But it is obviously ailing. MGM's management has still not decided what to do with the sprawling studio which once put forth a feature movie per week. Its huge sound stages remain empty and almost unused. In the past few years television series like "Dr. Kildare" and "The Man From Uncle" kept some of the stages occupied. But MGM had no series on the networks this season.

During his years as president of MGM, O'Brien fostered a plan to sell off the Culver City real estate and create a brandnew studio in the Conejo Valley 40 miles north of Los Angeles. Property was optioned and plans sketched out, but little has been heard about the plan in recent months.

The reason is obvious. MGM has other problems to settle before it can build a new studio.

The problems were visible in the recent financial statement for fiscal 1968. Profits were down a third, from $14,029,000 to $9,409,000. MGM Records dropped from a $2 million profit to a $4 million deficit. Film rentals fell almost $2 million to $21½ million; TV network sales dropped a half-million to $1.2 million. The drop in all divisions was precipitous in the second half of the fiscal year.

Morehouse Dogs to Be Severely Curbed

MOREHOUSE--Residents here are required to purchase dog license tags on or before April 1, as a result of an ordinance enacted by city council meeting.

The ordinance, which has been under debate, was passed by a three-to-two margin. The four aldermen were split evenly. The tie break came when Mayor I.B. McNew Sr. cast his vote favoring the measure. Aldermen who opposed the law were Frank Marshall, ward two, and Woodrow Bolen, ward one. Favoring the ordinance were Aldermen Lee Haley, ward one, and Delbert Payne, ward two.

Citizens attended the meeting to lodge recommendations and complaints about the ordinance.

It was decided that Mayor McNew will appoint a humane officer.

A dog pound area is also yet to be selected. The council set a $2 fee for licenses, which can be purchased in two months from City Clerk Manuel J. Taylor. It was also determined that dogs must be vaccinated.

The ordinance makes it unlawful for persons to allow their dogs to run at large on any street or in any public place. Should a dog be impounded the owner may redeem the animal by paying a $4 penalty in addition to purchasing a license and having the dog vaccinated.

Impounded animals will not be kept more than 10 days. A boarding fee will be determined by Mayor McNew.

Persons desiring to walk their dogs may do so with a leash, which cannot exceed 10 feet.

The law prohibits persons to keep dogs, who frequently bark, howl or yelp, or one that chases pedestrians, horses or vehicles.

Military Training Starts at 10

MOSCOW (AP) — Military training in the Soviet Union now starts at the age of 10.

Schoolboys throughout the country are organized into squads, detachments and battalions. Under adult commanders they practice drill, firing, the use of gas masks, other military skills and rendering medical aid.

The program introduced by the Kremlin leadership is being widened this year. Marshal Ivan Bagramyan, the World War II hero who has charge, this month ordered Pioneer units which had not taken part before to do so in 1968-69.

Soviet children from 10 to 15 belong to the Pioneer organization, which provides group activities and Communist indoctrination.

Older boys get more sophisticated military training the last two years before being drafted at 18. The Kremlin decreed this in 1967, also reducing the draft age one year.

The defense minister, Marshal Andrei Grechko, explained that the Soviet Union was "taking all steps necessary to strengthen its defenses."

The Soviet Union dropped the schoolboy soldier program after World War II.

The boys' training units, even for the youngest, have their political commissars alongside the military commanders, just as in the Soviet armed forces. They also have their military newspapers and political information classes.

From the start boys are told how they should think and instilled with patriotic feelings.

One of their tasks as "young armymen," the term used here, is to visit sights associated with the heroes of communism in the Revolution and World War II. They are also introduced to servicemen and veterans, who tell them about great deeds done for the motherland.

On military holidays, of which there are many, the boys' units are inspected as they drill and march. Each has its own bugler and drummer. The "young armymen" wear their red Pioneer scarfs in lieu of a uniform, and the officers have insignia of stars like those of the regular branches of the service.

Competitions are held on the regional, provincial and republic levels to pick out the detachments which excel in militarylike excercises. A final in June produces the winner for the country. This unit receives a big medal proclaiming "victor" to attach to its banner.

Former Public Enemy No. 1 Awaits Parole

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Back in the 1930s, Alvin Karpis was Public Enemy No. 1.

Now, he's a 62-year-old convict waiting to be released on parole after serving 33 years of a life sentence in federal prisons. He'll be released Jan. 14, then deported to his native Canada to work as a clerk typist.

During his time in prison he's advised youthful o enders, "I was Public Enemy No. 1—look what it did for me." Prison authorities regarded him as a model prisoner.

One official said, "He straightened out a lot of punks both here and at Alcatraz." Karpis spent 25 years on the San Francisco Bay Island penitentiary before being transferred here when Alcatraz was closed.

The Karpis-Barker gang that included Ma Barker, cut a path of crime across the heart of the nation. It was linked with 10 killings and two kidnapings between 1931 and 1936.

Karpis was dubbed Public Enemy No. 1 after wealthy Minnesota beer executive William Hamm Jr. was kidnaped and released unharmed following a ransom payment of $100,000.

Karpis' 1936 arrest in New Orleans was made by FBI director J. Edgar Hoover, accompanied by other FBI men.

Looking toward the future, Karpis said when he's released he wants to disappear from the public limelight—to lead a quiet life.

"I know I'll make good," he said.

New Threat Dims Hope Of Labor Peace in N.Y.

NEW YORK (AP) — Network television musicians are playing again. Workers at state mental hospitals have returned to the wards, and Long Island Rail Road engineers are back on the track. A labor peace? Not yet— now utility workers are set to walk out.

New Yorkers, who have already weathered police and firemen slowdowns and teachers and sanitationmen's strikes in 1968, braced today for a Sunday walkout by 20,000 workers at the Consolidated Edison Co.

Charles F. Luce, Con Ed board chairman, told 9,000,000 customers Thursday to expect "less than normal service" if the walkout occurs and appealed to the public to limit electrical usage during peak demand hours from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Luce said 4,000 supervisors would attempt to provide "essential" gas and electrical service for an indefinite period. "We are confident we can operate the system," he said, but added, "It will be a challenge."

The workers, members of Local 1-2 of the AFL-CIO Utility Workers of America, surprised their leaders and Con Ed officials by rejecting a proposed two-year contract Wednesday.

Meanwhile, the commuting challenge for 90,000 daily riders on the Long Island Rail Road appeared ended. Line officials said they expected "full service" but warned of possible delays due to new timetables.

Wildcat strikes by trainmen and engineers snarled service for three days beginning Monday this week. Then holiday snafus caused the cancellation of 20 of 270 runs and delays on 70 more Thursday.

A spokesman attributed the new trouble to problems in getting the men and machinery matched up. "We just didn't get all the guys in the same place with all the equipment," he said.

The line now gets its first test of the new timetables—its first major schedule change in 20 years. The changes, which union members said would cost them overtime pay, were blamed for the walkouts.

Nonprofessional workers who struck four state mental hospitals, disrupting the lives of thousands of patients for more than a week, began returning to the wards Thursday.

State officials said they would begin early next week to effect the return of 4,942 patients who had to be transferred to other institutions.

One patient under state care for 56 years at Manhattan State Hospital declared it was "the best Thanksgiving dinner I ever had" after the workers got back in time to prepare the traditional meal.

Several workers at Bronx State Hospital were notified they were suspended pending a police investigation of alleged acts of violence during the strike.

The striking workers, members of Council 50 of the State, County and Municipal Employes, AFL-CIO, voted to end the walkout Wednesday after Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller agreed to cease bargaining with the rival Civil Service Employes Association.

The state Public Employment Relations Board, in a ruling backing the strikers' demands, divided state employes into five units and ordered representation elections in each.

Finally, a 28-day strike of musicians against the three major radio and television networks ended Thursday with the announcement that members had voted 270-263 to accept a new two-year contract.

The vote conducted Wednesday in New York, Miami and Los Angeles ended the walkout by 800 musicians against the National Broadcasting Co., the American Broadcasting Co. and the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The American Federation of Musicians, AFL-CIO, won a raise in staff musicians' base pay to $280.70 a week, up $23, and an hourly overtime rate hike to $14.90. They had sought an immediate increase of $64 a week.

DRUG TESTED

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — The controversial drug thalidomide is being tested at Karl Bremer Hospital here as an immuno-suppressive serum in baboon kidney transplants and skin grafts on rabbits. Immuno-suppressive drugs are designed to prevent the body's natural rejection of transplanted organs.

Thalidomide is banned in South Africa but can be imported for research, a spokesman said. He said it "compared satisfyingly" with other immuno-suppressive drugs tested.

Fashion Plus Function Is The Key To Ski Wear

Men heading for the snowy slopes had best be aware of the blizzard of fashion that has engulfed skiers, skaters, and snowmobilers, warns the American Institute of Men's and Boys' War. There was a time not so long ago when you could spot the "hot" skiers by the understated, purely utilitarian look of their outfits. Now, the newest active skiwear combines the practical with the fashionable so well that even the champs have adopted it. The great new look of the North has spread to after-ski outfits as well.

In some outfits, "coordination" is the key word. There are now completely coordinated rigs of sweater, jacket and ski pants that are available in sets and as units. For example, one outfit consists of a high-crew-neck sweater with patterning confined to the collar, top of the sleeves and the bottom. The coordinated coat is also knitted and duplicates the pattern at top of shoulders and on either side of its zippered front. The big switch is that the coat can be had in either a sleeveless or sleeved model. The very popular sleeveless style shows matching pattern on the sweater sleeve and allows complete freedom of action while keeping the body warm.

Ski pants are available in the much wanted stretch fabrics that either match or complement sweater colors.

Other highly favored outfits include "snap-up" instructor coats that can be turned up for downhill trips, shorty quilted styles that reverse from color to color or from a solid color to a pattern and conceal a parka in their collar.

A one-piece stretch outfit, somewhat similar to the "jump suit" is another style making big gains with serious skiers. In bright as well as subdued colors, the one-piece coveralls fit snugly to avoid "wind-flap" on a fast downhill or slalom course. They are easily fastened with large industrial-type zippers.

Many of the new parkas utilize quilting as part of their designs. One above-the-knee model has vertical tubular quilting that is intersected across the chest and down the sleeves with bands of bright contrzsting hue. The hood is attached and secures with a drawstring.

The "Patrol Coat" is another model high in practicality and strong in fashion. One side of that reversible coat is a tough blend of polyester and cotton, has slashed muff pockets and generaously flapped lower pockets. It reverses to a quilted black nylon side and has a built-on hood with snug drawstring. Other features are its brass snap closure and broad all-around belt.

For fun around the fire, garments are lighter in weight but still rugged. The layered look of a sweater over a knitted skirt or another sweater is the big thing. Some men achieve it by wearing a cardigan over a T-neck or a mock-turtle.

A shetland, tweed or twill sport jacket - take your pick -- is another possibility for wear with slacks or ski pants at night. And, of course, your blazer is just as "at home" in a ski lodge as it is most places.

For style as well as safety, investigate the new plastic ski helmets. Almost weightless, they shield you from the cold and may prevent those nasty bumps and gashes that can spoil an otherwise great ski vacation.

And, talking about helmets, they are a must for the latest snow craze; snowmobiling! Scouting over the drifts both uphill and down in motorized go-carts calls for a very special type of gear. The one-piece snowmobile suit of nylon in dark shades brightened with colorful zippers on pockets and leg and body closures, are equally practical for frigid spectator wear. They lock-in body heat while keeping out the cold, biting wind.

Winners of Chicago 4-H Trip

Jo Fullington

John Lindquist Jr.

Two Missouri youths with winning ways now know how Chicago earned its name of "the Windy City." The two—Jo Fullington, 17, of 2704 East Blue Ridge Rd., Columbia, and John Lindquist Jr., 18, of Greentop—will spend the first week in December in Chicago as delegates to the 47th National 4-H Congress.

Miss Fullington and Lindquist received their all-expense paid trips to the congress as sectional winners in 4-H programs supervised by the Cooperative Extension Service.

Miss Fullington was one of 18 sectional winners from around the nation in dog care and training programs. Her Chicago trip and a transistor radio, received as state winner, were donated by the Ralston Purina Company.

A high school senior, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Fullington.

Lindquist's trip to the congress was one of 12 awarded to sectional winners in forestry programs by American Forest Institute. He also received a pen-and-pencil set as the state winner.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lindquist and is a freshman at Northeast Missouri State.

In eight years Miss Fullington has raised dozens of different dogs, and has trained and shown many of them. Although most of her dogs have been Collies, she also has worked with a Beagle, German Shepherds and a Springer Spaniel. Many of her dogs have won awards at central Missouri shows.

Dog training and showing has become a family affair, with her mother participating as well. The mother-daughter team often win prizes at the same show.

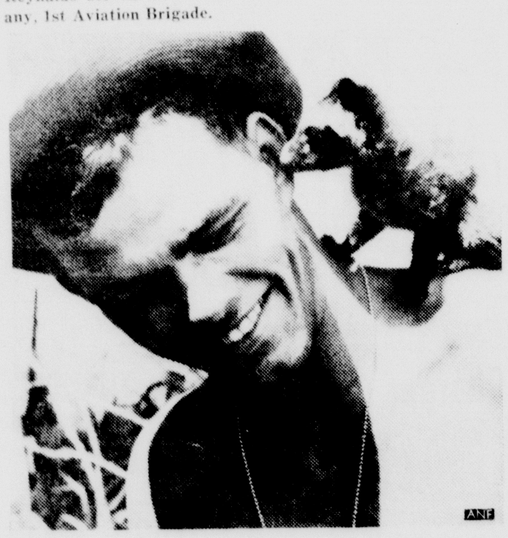

Lindquist has made his forestry work pay financially as well as in awards and recognition. He has planted more than 6,000 pine and spruce seedlings in three years. The sale of some of these helped with the expense of his first year at college.

Lindquist admits that he never could have planted all the seedlings he has without help. His father, mother and older sister pitched in to help with the time-consuming and tiresome work, he said.

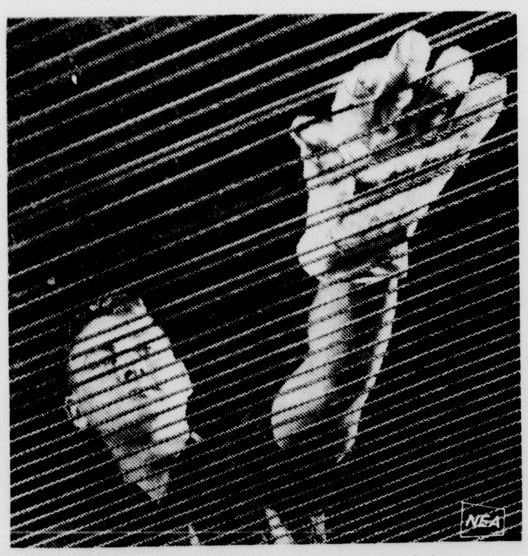

He is particularly grateful for the help of his sister Penny who, he said, helped put out the seedlings after her classes at Northeast Missouri State. Lindquist hopes to put his forestry experience and a business administration degree together for a career in forestry.

THEIR SERVICE SPANS THREE WARS — Reynaldo Chaves (left) and his father, Dioscoro, are employed at the U.S. Army Finance Center, Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. Dioscoro served during World War II in the Philippines and rose to the rank of Master Sergeant in the U.S. Army. He also served in Korea with the 39th Infantry, 3d Division. Reynaldo served in Vietnam with the 282d Aviation Company, 1st Aviation Brigade.

IT'S NOT NICE TO WHISPER — We don't know what the Vietnamese banana cat is telling Pfc John C. McAfee, of Grafton, W. Va., but it could be a list of things he would like for Christmas. Private McAfee is a rifleman in Company D, 1st Battalion of the 173d Airborne Brigade's 503d Infantry. The cat is the company's mascot.

NOPE, NOT A ZITHER but steel cable to reinforce conveyor belting. The "kid glove" treatment is to insure that hand perspiration won't form a film on the cable that might weaken its bond when a protective rubber cover is applied at Goodyear's Marysville, Ohio, plant.

TRIO OF TOTES — Make a simple tote bag from a yard-length of cotton for Christmas gifts or bazaar items. Vary fabrics and trim for unusual effects. At top, a bright yellow cotton duck tote is appliqued with a big button-centered flower. A shoe applique identifies a polka-dotted shoe tote, and a row of flower cut-outs tacked on with buttons offers another variation.

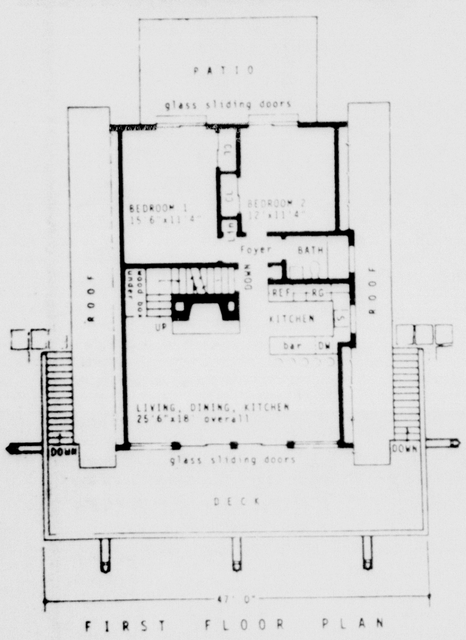

COTTON CARRY-ALL — Every woman needs a little something to carry a lot of things in, and a roomy tote bag is the answer. Floral-printed cotton duck is circled with a row of thick white fringe for decoration, and cotton cording makes a handy drawstring.

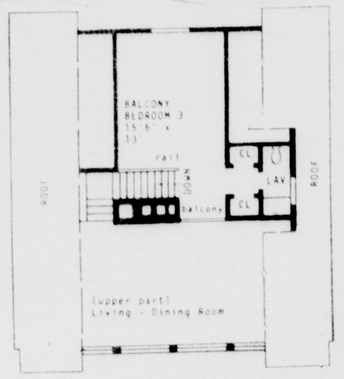

AT-HOME ELEGANCE — A dashing hostess look for the holidays is the cotton velveteen ensemble. Miss Pat of California designs it with a long tunic jacket and pants with flaring legs that scrape the heels.

TRIO OF TOTES — Make a simple tote bag from a yard-length of cotton for Christmas gifts or bazaar items. Vary fabrics and trim for unusual effects. At top, a bright yellow cotton duck tote is appliqued with a big button-centered flower. A shoe applique identifies a polka-dotted shoe tote, and a row of flower cut-outs tacked on with buttons offers another variation.

COTTON CARRY-ALL—Every woman needs a little something to carry a lot of things in, and a roomy tote bag is the answer. Floral-printed cotton duck is circled with a row of thick white fringe for decoration, and cotton cording makes a handy drawstring.

AT-HOME ELEGANCE — A dashing hostess look for the holidays is the cotton velveteen ensemble. Miss Pat of California designs it with a long tunic jacket and pants with flaring legs that scrape the heels.

Ann Landers

Not All Women Will Tolerate Spankings

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you took a strong stand against wife- spanking. Why? A columnist with your knowledge of psychology should know that women respect and admire men who assert their maleness. It took two divorces before I learned how to handle females.

I tried to reason with my first two wives. I spent hours arguing before I realized they were brainless donkeys. My brilliant logic was wasted on them.

My third marriage is much better. The very first time we had an argument I turned my wife over my knee and gave her a good, sound spanking. "When you behave like a child," I told her, "you will be treated like a child." Since that time I haven't had too much trouble. I've had to give her an occasional spanking, but nothing like the first one.

If more men tried it there would be fewer divorces in this country. IN CHARGE

Dear In: This might come as a surprise to you, Bub, but a great many women would not tolerate such degrading treatment.

And now will you answer a question for me? How did a man with such brilliant logic wind up married to two brainless donkeys?

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't print my initials or my town. If the guys knew I was writing to you they'd die laughing.

I am 17 years old and going steady with a great little chick. The only problem she got's this thing about the phone. She wants me to call her every night at nine when we aren't together. I don't mind calling but I can't get her off the horn. She has a phone of her own and can talk all night, but my ma gets mad when I tie up our phone too long.

What can a guy do about a girl who wants to yak forever? --- CAULIFLOWER EARS

Dear Ears: The next time your doll tries for permanent possession of the Bell trophy, tell her your ma is on the warpath and you've come up with a solution to insure domestic tranquilty. Place an alarm clock by the phone. Set it for 15 minutes. That's long enough to get everything said. When the alarm goes off, say good-bye --- and go.

Dear Ann Landers: Can you take it as well as dish it out? We shall see. A few weeks back you said it was "ungracious" for a guest to send a hostess a bill for $5.00 to replace a brand new pair of panty hose which were torn by the hostess's dog.

As an attorney I can tell you that a person is legally responsible for damage or injury inflected by his pet -- whether it's $5 or $5,000. Who was your expert on this one? --- PHILADELPHIA LAWYER

Dear Phil: I didn't realize this was a legal problem, but I see your point. Who was my expert? You were. And I thank you.

Warranty Covers Car Motor Catching Fire

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After many years of owning second-hand cars, Morris finally blew his bankroll on a brand new automobile that he took better care of than his own wife.

If it snowed or rained, the vehicle never left the garage. If there was the slightest bump on the road, or even a puddle of water, he'd drive as much as two miles out of the way to avoid it.

In fact, he babied the automobile with everything but talcum powder. Consequently, you can picture his chagrin when he drove into a shopping center, one day, and the engine suddenly caught fire. And, by the time the firemen arrived, the much loved car was only a smoldering memory.

Wiping the tears from his eyes, Morris recalled that when he bought the automobile, the dealer had given him a warranty that the car was free from defects in material and workmanship. Losing no time, Morris sued the dealer for breach of that warranty.

"The car was only three months old,' Morris complained in court, "and had traveled only 1,100 miles. Considering the love and devotion I gave it, and the gentle care, the fire was obviously due to a defect in materials or workmanship and due to no fault of mine."

"Nonsense," retorted the car dealer. "There isn't one shred of evidence one way or the other as to why the fire started. Under the circumstances, I can't be hung for the loss."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the car dealer responsible for breach of warrenty?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! Noting that there wasn't a scintilla of evidence to indicate any abuse of the car, the motor, nevertheless, caught fire after only three months of ownership and 1,100 miles of prudent travel. Common sense and logic, the judge concluded, presents the inevitable inference to be drawn that the fire had to be caused by some defect in materials or workmanship covered by the warranty.

MARY WICKES, actress-comedienne, accepts chairmanship of 1969 Missouri Easter Seal campaign, opening March 1.

Actress Tops Easter Seal Campaign

ST. LOUIS - Actress Mary Wickes will head the 1969 State Easter Seal Campaign, according to Mrs. Galen Brown, president of the Missouri Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The appeal, which opens March 1, annually seeks funds for treatment and rehabilitation services for the physically handicapped.

Because of work commitments, New York and California have been favored with Mary Wickes' presence. This native St. Louisan still regards the gateway metropolis as home and returns whenever possible.

The first part of this year, her alma mater, Washinton University in St. Louis, chose her as the first artist-in-residence fo its new performing arts area. Last summer she was Arthur Godfrey's co-star in "Show Boat" at the St. Louis Municipal Opera and the Kansas City Starlight Theater.

In replying to the invitation to be campaign chairman, Miss Wickes said, "I can think of nothing I would rather be." She and her parents, the late Isabelle and Frank Wickenhauser, were friends of Dr. and Mrs. J. Archer O'Reilly. Dr. O'Reilly was the third president of te Missouri Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Miss Wickes has performed in over 30 major films; almost every well-known television program, including nine series; nearly 200 weeks of summer stock and 18 Broadway shows. One of her most unforgettable roles was that of the harassed nurse, Miss Preen, in both the Broadway and film versions of "The Man Who Came to Dinner".

More recently, Miss Wickes has appeared as guest star on "The Lucy Show", "I Spy" and "Beverly Hillbillies", and co-starred with Rosalind Russell in the film, "Where Angels Go, Trouble Follows".

Not one to confinre her talents to show business, Miss Wickes has completed over 700 hours as a volunteer at the Episcopal Hospital of the Good Samaritan in Los Angeles. She is a charter member of the Los Angeles Museum of Art, one of a select group of acotrs elected to membership in the National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, an active alumna of Washington University, and a working member of her church.

Ann Landers

Not All Women Will Tolerate Spankings

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column you took a strong stand against wife- spanking. Why? A columnist with your knowledge of psychology should know that women respect and admire men who assert their maleness. It took two divorces before I learned how to handle females.

I tried to reason with my first two wives. I spent hours arguing before I realized they were brainless donkeys. My brilliant logic was wasted on them.

My third marriage is much better. The very first time we had an argument I turned my wife over my knee and gave her a good, sound spanking. "When you behave like a child," I told her, "you will be treated like a child." Since that time I haven't had too much trouble. I've had to give her an occasional spanking, but nothing like the first one.

If more men tried it there would be fewer divorces in this country. IN CHARGE

Dear In: This might come as a surprise to you, Bub, but a great many women would not tolerate such degrading treatment.

And now will you answer a question for me? How did a man with such brilliant logic wind up married to two brainless donkeys?

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't print my initials or my town. If the guys knew I was writing to you they'd die laughing.

I am 17 years old and going steady with a great little chick. The only problem she got's this thing about the phone. She wants me to call her every night at nine when we aren't together. I don't mind calling but I can't get her off the horn. She has a phone of her own and can talk all night, but my ma gets mad when I tie up our phone too long.

What can a guy do about a girl who wants to yak forever? --- CAULIFLOWER EARS

Dear Ears: The next time your doll tries for permanent possession of the Bell trophy, tell her your ma is on the warpath and you've come up with a solution to insure domestic tranquilty. Place an alarm clock by the phone. Set it for 15 minutes. That's long enough to get everything said. When the alarm goes off, say good-bye --- and go.

Dear Ann Landers: Can you take it as well as dish it out? We shall see. A few weeks back you said it was "ungracious" for a guest to send a hostess a bill for $5.00 to replace a brand new pair of panty hose which were torn by the hostess's dog.

As an attorney I can tell you that a person is legally responsible for damage or injury inflected by his pet -- whether it's $5 or $5,000. Who was your expert on this one? --- PHILADELPHIA LAWYER

Dear Phil: I didn't realize this was a legal problem, but I see your point. Who was my expert? You were. And I thank you.

Warranty Covers Car Motor Catching Fire

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

After many years of owning second-hand cars, Morris finally blew his bankroll on a brand new automobile that he took better care of than his own wife.

If it snowed or rained, the vehicle never left the garage. If there was the slightest bump on the road, or even a puddle of water, he'd drive as much as two miles out of the way to avoid it.

In fact, he babied the automobile with everything but talcum powder. Consequently, you can picture his chagrin when he drove into a shopping center, one day, and the engine suddenly caught fire. And, by the time the firemen arrived, the much loved car was only a smoldering memory.

Wiping the tears from his eyes, Morris recalled that when he bought the automobile, the dealer had given him a warranty that the car was free from defects in material and workmanship. Losing no time, Morris sued the dealer for breach of that warranty.

"The car was only three months old,' Morris complained in court, "and had traveled only 1,100 miles. Considering the love and devotion I gave it, and the gentle care, the fire was obviously due to a defect in materials or workmanship and due to no fault of mine."

"Nonsense," retorted the car dealer. "There isn't one shred of evidence one way or the other as to why the fire started. Under the circumstances, I can't be hung for the loss."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the car dealer responsible for breach of warrenty?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! Noting that there wasn't a scintilla of evidence to indicate any abuse of the car, the motor, nevertheless, caught fire after only three months of ownership and 1,100 miles of prudent travel. Common sense and logic, the judge concluded, presents the inevitable inference to be drawn that the fire had to be caused by some defect in materials or workmanship covered by the warranty.

MARY WICKES, actress-comedienne, accepts chairmanship of 1969 Missouri Easter Seal campaign, opening March 1.

Actress Tops Easter Seal Campaign

ST. LOUIS - Actress Mary Wickes will head the 1969 State Easter Seal Campaign, according to Mrs. Galen Brown, president of the Missouri Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

The appeal, which opens March 1, annually seeks funds for treatment and rehabilitation services for the physically handicapped.

Because of work commitments, New York and California have been favored with Mary Wickes' presence. This native St. Louisan still regards the gateway metropolis as home and returns whenever possible.

The first part of this year, her alma mater, Washinton University in St. Louis, chose her as the first artist-in-residence fo its new performing arts area. Last summer she was Arthur Godfrey's co-star in "Show Boat" at the St. Louis Municipal Opera and the Kansas City Starlight Theater.

In replying to the invitation to be campaign chairman, Miss Wickes said, "I can think of nothing I would rather be." She and her parents, the late Isabelle and Frank Wickenhauser, were friends of Dr. and Mrs. J. Archer O'Reilly. Dr. O'Reilly was the third president of te Missouri Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

Miss Wickes has performed in over 30 major films; almost every well-known television program, including nine series; nearly 200 weeks of summer stock and 18 Broadway shows. One of her most unforgettable roles was that of the harassed nurse, Miss Preen, in both the Broadway and film versions of "The Man Who Came to Dinner".

More recently, Miss Wickes has appeared as guest star on "The Lucy Show", "I Spy" and "Beverly Hillbillies", and co-starred with Rosalind Russell in the film, "Where Angels Go, Trouble Follows".

Not one to confinre her talents to show business, Miss Wickes has completed over 700 hours as a volunteer at the Episcopal Hospital of the Good Samaritan in Los Angeles. She is a charter member of the Los Angeles Museum of Art, one of a select group of acotrs elected to membership in the National Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, an active alumna of Washington University, and a working member of her church.

WIND AND RAIN over the Thanksgiving holiday left its toll. A plate glass window was broken and an 100-foot awning torn lose on the Ellis Alcorn building in the 200 block of South Main St.

Rain-Wind Storm Heads Northeast

A fierce November storm swirled into the northeast today after lashing the Midwest with snow, sleet, heavy rain and wind.

The storm, which crept out of Mexico early in the week, then dawdled over Texas storing up moisture and power, galloped across the Southern plains, the Midwest and Ohio Valley Thanksgiving Day.

The holiday weather effects were numerous and widespread: flood-swollen rivers and streams in middle Tennessee, snow-coated landscape and highways intermittently from Missouri to Michigan. Rains measuring more than 6 inches swamped Tennessee from the Mississippi River to the Cumberland Mountains Thursday. After a day of warnings of possibly serious flooding on the Harpeth River near Nashville, the Weather Bureau stopped its flood bulletins late Thursday and indicated the threat had passed.

Heavy rains ranged northward across Illinois and South and West into Mississippi and Arkansas, where some flooding was reported.

Snow mixed with sleet made holiday travel treacherous north of the rain area. Two to 5 inches of snow whitened the area from northeastern Missouri into central Lower Michigan. Up to 8 inches covered some northern Lower Michigan communities.

High winds accompanied the daylong downpours across the Midwest, and into the Northeast today. Gale warnings continued on all the Great Lakes and were extended to include the Northern Atlantic Coast.

The winds tore down part of the steel superstructure for a high school auditorium being built north of Indianapolis. Damage was estimated at nearly a quarter-million dollars. Eastward in Ohio, the gusts knocked out power in many parts of Cincinnati and smashed numerous store display windows.

Outside the storm area, portions of Colorado and Wyoming received up to 6 inches of snow, and Colorado ski areas reported in unusually large number of skiers for a Thanksgiving.

Ahead of the storm, much of the Eastern seaboard was fanned by September-like mildness during the night. Low temperatures in the 60s were common from Washington to Boston.

In contrast, Arctic cold numbed the northern Rockies. Laramie, Wyo., registered an ear-stinging 3 below zero before dawn.

And heavy-snow warnings were issued for mountain areas of New Mexico.

Four Treated At Hospital

Treated Thanksgiving day for injuries at the Missouri Delta Community hospital were two patients in car accidents, and two with eye and toe injuries.

Melissa D. Hopper and Martha L. Hopper, both of Overland, car accident; Ora Mae Davis, struck eye with stick; Linda T. Lawrence, New Madrid, struck toe on door in home.

Snow mixed with sleet made holiday travel treacherous north of the rain area. Two to 5 inches of snow whitened the area from northeastern Missouri into central Lower Michigan. Up to 8 inches covered some northern Lower Michigan communities.

High winds accompanied the daylong downpours across the Midwest, and into the Northeast today. Gale warnings continued on all the Great Lakes and were extended to include the Northern Atlantic Coast.

The winds tore down part of the steel superstructure for a high school auditorium being built north of Indianapolis. Damage was estimated at nearly a quarter-million dollars. Eastward in Ohio, the gusts knocked out power in many parts of Cincinnati and smashed numerous store display windows.
